dians founded the little town of Las Vegas Hot Springs, near here, long before the American continent was discovered by Sebastian Cabot, or Christopher Columbus, or Americo Vespucci, or whoever really did discover it. The town of Las Vegas, proper, signifying "the meadows," grew up quite mushroom-like after the Auchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railroad built through to Albuquerque, and constructed their little branch road over to the Hot Springs, several miles from Vegas. This town is lively enough, but not particularly interesting—except when the tourist is hungry, the big "railway eating house" being here. But at the Hot Springs one might easily imagine he had been translated bodily into fairyland. The little hamletsnuggles closedown under the mountains where it is sheltered from every storm. It has, therefore, a climate peculiarly its own, which serves as an attraction in addition to the wonderful hot springs which bubble up in fifty different places, and some of which smell like—well, the place that "Bob" Ingersoll says does not exist. Almost every southern state has its hot springs, and, in addition to several places of this kind, Georgia has her own incomparable and unrivalled Hillman electric shaft, but when it comes to genuine cures Las Vegas can show up some pretty tall stories. Most of the cures are effected by the mud baths, which are a novel feature. The patient is plastered over from head to foot with extremely hot mud, made by mixing prairie loam with the hot mineral water. The nose, mouth, eyes and ears are left uncovered. He is then placed in a tub of the mud and left there half an hour, after which his dirty coating is scraped off. A shower bath of the hot water follows, then a plunge in a tank of it: after which comes the massage by a professional; half an hour's siesta—the patient, sleeping, wrapped in a sheet, in a room the temperature of which is about ninety-eight degrees—and after this another rubbing. If rheumatism survives this treatment long the patient's only hope for relief lies in suic concoction. The hot springs came to be discovered in a very singular way. The buffaloes first found the spot, and came there every year to drink the water and to wallow in the warm mud. Roving Indians from the Zuni settlement at Santa Fe noticed the beaten trail made by the buffaloes and followed it to the springs. They the water and to wallow in the warm mud. Roving Indians from the Zuni settlement at Santa Fe noticed the beaten trail made by the buffaloes and followed it to the springs. They drank of the iron water where it had cooled, and also of the sulphur and chalybeate. They found out its medicinal value and, as early as the middle of the fourteenth century, they began bringing their aged and sick braves and squaws to lave and drink here. For two hundred years—until after the Spanish conquest of Mexico and the settlement of the Spanish in this region—Las Vegas was the principal sanitarium of the Zunis. When the Catholic priests first learned of the curative powers of the hot springs they bottled some of the water and sent it by peon messengers, post haste, to the Spaniards in old Mexico, who were then suffering from the smallpox. So great was the faith of the Indians in the efficacy of this water as a cure-all that the priests were led to take this trouble. Whether the water, after its journey across the desert plains to the Mexican capital, effected a cure or not history does not record.

After the buffaloes came the Zunis; after the Indians the priests and Spanish settlers, and after them the United Statessoldiers, who made a "hospital camp" here as far back as 1845. A few years later the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railroad secured the spot. They laid out a beautiful park, with lovely lawns, trees, fournains and flowers, and lighted it with hundreds of incandescent lamps. They built a hotel more elegant in its appointments than our own famous "Kimball," and then they did the best thing of ail—secured the very finest cooks to be had for money, and a competent and experienced manager. The result captivates the traveler, and those who come for a day remain for a week, often for a month. Outside of New York there is no such service or cooking; indeed the very best in New York is not better. What an oasis in a dreary desert of railway eating houses between Kansas City and Los Angeles!

The hotel dining room is a novelty and every window is a bower of vines and blooming flowers, wherein are hung scores of golden cages filled with canaries, who trill and carol the whole day through, flooding the house with their joyous melody. What can be pleasanter of a morning than to be awakened by the clear and liquid trill of birds and the soft plashing of many fountains? soft plashing of many fountains? "Everything is made to conduce to a feeling of perfect rest," and in this the designers have succeeded beyond their fondest expectations, for here, as in no other fashienable resort, may be found an isolation from care that must be born of the blue skies, the sunshine and the ever-blooming flowers.

The electricity in the air astonishes visitors. The electricity in the air astonishes visitors. The elevation of 6,860 feet above the sea tends to increase the electrical conductivity of everything in the house. People who move rapidly across the parlors, shuffling their feet never so lightly over the carpet, feel a decided shock on touching another person's hands or garmfents. Sparks can be brought from the tips of one's fingers with a very trifling exertion. This is thought to help rheumatic sufferers very materially, and to co-operate with the hot baths in effecting permanent cures.

The one great dissipation at the springs is burro riding to some of the high cliffs near by, from where magnificent views of the "mesas," the distant Rockies and the glinting waters of the Gallmas may be obtained. It requires no special skill to ride a burro, although to do it with grace is somewhat difficult of achievement. The patient, sad-eyed, subdued-looking little creature is usually so small that a man, sitting astride him finds it somewhat uncomfortable to keep his feet from touching the ground. The smaller the burro the greater his capacity for carrying a load. It may seem absurd to think of a man weighing two hundred and fifty pounds riding a burro that would scarcely "tip the scales" at two hundred, and yet the thing is by no means impossible—in fact it is hardly uncommon. Women take to burro riding more naturally than men and they soon fall quite in love with the long-eared, fuzzy little brutes.

Following a mountain trail on burre-back is an experience not to be missed. The trail from the Phonixlhotel to Trout Springs is one of the favorites. The distance, round trip, is twelve miles, and it takes precisely a day—twelve hours—to make it on a burro. You first climb a hill so steep that it seems almost incredible an animal thus loaded can ascend it. As you near the summit a throbbing of the temples, the purple faces of your companions, the emples, the purple fac

PRINTERS' MISTAKES.

"Jerusalem!" Was the exclamation of the managing editor as he threw himself into his easy chair and wiped the perspiration from his brow. "Anything wrong?" asked one of his associ-ates who had been too busy to peruse the morning paper.

"Wrong? Wrong, hell! Have you read my 'leader' on "The Situation in France?"
"No."

The cause for the managing editor's indignation was just, and it was about as follows:
He had taken extra pains to prepare an editorial on "The situation in France," and had occasion to write "when Louis Phillipe ascended the throne of France."

The intelligent compositor set in type "when Sam Phillipps absconded, the thieves of France."

Sam Philipps absconded, the theves of France."

When the editor saw the proof he he was too full for utterance, and with a dash of the pen he wrote on the margin "Who the hell is Sam Philips?" never dreaming but what the printer would accept the rebuke and see copy and set it as the editor had written.

The printer failed to see any rebuke in the matter, but on the contrary seemed elated over his skill in having set a half column from the editor's handwrite with only one "out," as he took the words on the margin to mean.

The compositor soon had the matter run over, and the addition of "who the hell is Sam Phillips" met the eyes of the astonished and indignant editor in the morning paper.

The general public cannot be made to understand how easy it is for a blunder to appear in their morning's paper.

The copy is sent to the foreman's desk, who arranges and cuts into "takes"—little pieces to the pick and the pick with the pick was to the pick was to

upon a hock and the printer gets it from there.

A man may get a dozen lines from the middle of an article that has no connection to begin or end. It is numbered "1 B," "2 B," etc., or "1 A," "2 A," etc. The printers understand the manufacture of the printers understand the manufacture of the "genless". "I A," "2 A," etc. The printers understand these marks and put their type on the "galleys" accordingly. Everthing is thus kept "closed up," and is unavoidable in a large office, but accounts for a great many errors that appear from day to day. If a printer loses time in decipering bad copy he loses money, and consequently he sets things up just as it strikes his eye and trusts to the proof-reader for the balance.

There is no malicious intent in the errors of There is no malicious intent in the errors of the compositor. Sometimes he may perpetrate a joke upon some fellow who writes an extra-ordinary bad hand, as in the instance of the Rev. Leftwitch's papers, in the Block contro-versy, a line of comas, periods, etc., were set up, at the bottom of the column, with instruc-tions for the reader to put them just where he pleased. The most careful man I ever knew had the

The most careful man I ever knew had the line, "Nearer my God to Thee," appear in print as "Nearer my Girl to Thee."

The same man had "a man found dead in the cellar of a house," appear in the paperas "found dead in the cellar of a horse."

Such errors seem ridiculous, but they are the consequence of bad copy and haste, and his should inspire those who are disposed to be reless in their writing to be careful. The general reader cannot imagine how many persons send important letters, that call for answers, into a large printing office with omissions that makes it impossible for them to receive attention. A public that is so careless in matters of material interest to themselves are oftener careless of the interest careless in matters of material interest to themselves are oftener careless of the interest of the "intelligent compositor."

Ben Hill was the printer's friend among public men. His copy was clear and smooth and he never made a change. On the other hand Mr. Stephens was reckless, and there could not be found one man out of ten that could read his hand at all, Senator Brown furnishes tolerable copy but is bad on the change. Toombs was reckless and played havoc with the printer's "string."

Of professional newspaper men, the Rev. change. Toombs was reckless and played havoc with the printer's "string."

Of professional newspaper men, the Rev. Sam Small beats the world in the preparation of copy, while the brilliant Grady will have an eloquent flourish of a temperance article, "with threadbare coat and hectic flush," go in as "with threadbare coat and nectic flush." As an illustration of the handwrite of the latter gentleman, I am told that upon one occasion he wrote one of his assistants in the office a severe reprimand for some neglect of duty, and the individual turned it to advantage by using it as a letter of recommendation.

Occasionally is met one of these bad writers who dislike to be told about it. This was so with the late Comptroller Peterson Thweatt. He had to pay extra composition for his job work, and he was sensitive on the question. On one occasion, I remember, a printer, in a spirit of fun, set up in type and slipped into some matter that was being proved for him to read, the following lines of doggerel:

Look down, ye Gods, and take one sight

Look down, ye Gods, and take one sight Of the cursed hand this man doth write, And you will grant us what we seek— A deliverance from Comptroller Thweatt. We would not have you kill him yet— Until he doth forgiveness get— But by some supernatural freak, Deliver us from Comptroller Thweatt.

The old gentleman always carried a large walking cane and that printer was alway careful to not get in reach of the same.

Judge Bleckley is the printers' smart man, and yet he wrote "De minimis non curat lex," in such a manner that one of the most "intelligent" deciphered it "the miners now curse at tax." One could write indefinitely of these errors, but I must close with Editor Reed's "that little bug, the doodle," which went through as "bonny, the double."

DISEASES OF MEN.

A large experience in treating diseases peculiar to men has enabled Dr. Tucker to perfect a system of treatment which never falls to effect a cure when directions are adhered to. Those who are suffering with organic weakness, night emissions, loss of power, nervous debility, irritable disposition, aversion to society weakness in the back, less of muscular power, dimness of vision, melancholy, epilepsy, impaired memory and a general flagging of all the vital powers, induced by youthful indiscretion, or the excesses of maturer years, are specificly, thoroughly and permanently cured. ### TREATING PATIENTS BY CORRESPONDENCE.

By his original system of diagnosis it is rarely necessary for Dr. Tucker to see his patients. Many patients can be better treated that way than by meeting the physician direct. A vast experience has taught the doctor that it is always best to let the patient describe the malady in his or her own language. After receiving and considering such a history, if he does not fully understand the case, he will ask such further questions as may be necessary to a full understanding of the case. Patients should always give age, sex, married or single, complexion, height, present and former weight (as near as possible) and occupation. Follow this with history of case in your own language, giving all particulars and symptoms, inclosing stamp for reply.

Dr. Tucker is responsible for what he says and does, professionally, financially and individually. He courts honest, sincere investigation, and is at all times glad and anxions to show those interested what he is daily doing for suffering humanity. The afflicted will always find in the doctor a sympathizer, friend and safe counsellor. If you are afflicted and cannot be cured at home, you will never regret giving him a fair trial. of Committee on Pumps, Whiskeyville. He magnified his office, although it was de-clared in the city of which he was one of the rulers that he neglected the pumps in the interest of his business. Every advocate of any cause is under like temptation to magnify his subject. But, although I hope to avoid the appearance of unduly exalting the importance of my topic, I am yet prompted to declare the conviction I am yet prompted to declare the conviction that Georgia prohibitionists have not quite realized the size of the evil which they are alrayed to put down, and our relation to it as a great national wrong and peril. Why do I say this? Because many of us have been hitherto content to rest in local option as a final solution of the question. But what is local option? It is driving snakes out of our garden into our noighbors' gardens and coolly saying that it is the whole of our business to get rid of our own snakes and turn them upon the adjoining premises of our friends. The Christ of a golden rule could never approve a policy so narrow, so selfish as that. If it were not presumption to attempt to fathom Providence and justify the ways of God to men, I should say that this false basis of our Georgia efforts was the explanation of that mysterious reverse which the Almighty has permitted to come upon the good and true men and women of this great city, that, like a young Atalanta, has outstripped her sisters, not only in the race for material wealth, but a few years ago walked with beautiful feet upon the menuntain tops of municipal purity and righteoseness.

In all the struggles for prohibition we have been made to realize that although our forces were all local and the battleground local, yet our enemy was one of national proportions. The great liquor power declared: "We will fight southern fanaticism with northern capital until the prohibition heresy is crushed." In the Texas and Tennessee campaigns they poured out money like water. That great power reached out its hands, like the hundred hands of Briareus, all-over the nation to levy contributions for the sinews of war, and thus to overwhelm us with what Victor Hugo has grandly called the "cowardice of hexhaustible resources." DEAL OPTION VERSUS A NATIONAL FOE.

Arbations for the sinews of war, and thus to overwhelm us with what Victor Hugo has grandly called the "cowardice of inexhaustible resources."

We have, therefore, been educated by the discipline of calamity out of the narrowness and selfishness of local option. Georgia is not an association of counties. She is a state. And the prohibitionists of the one hundred redeemed counties dony that the prohibition which they have secured should be impaired and nullified by the liquor interests of the few remaining counties. Hence, the Georgia State Temperance association has made requisition upon the goneral assembly for a state law which shall represent the democratic dectrine that the majority of the counties subject to the nuisances permitted in the other fourth.

I do not saylocal option is a failure. It has led up to a larger success. It has been the schoolmaster to lead us to state law, which is but local option on a larger scale. When in any county a majority of districts or communities opposed liquor selling, the county secured county prohibition, and the other districts or communities must needs yield to the county authority. So, now that an overwhelming majority of the counties have adopted prohibition, state prohibition follows as the natural logical result, and disaffected counties must yield to the general good.

The recent decision of the supreme court of the United States in the Kansas cases has armed the law with a weapon which enables it to crush the defiance of the saloon, whose shibboleth "prohibition shall not prohibit. Heratofore, in the communities where the saloon has had a considerable crowd of adherents, it was found difficult to prosecute successfully violations of the law, for the reason that generally some of those adherents would be on the juries by whom the prosecutions were tried. This has been urged as the chief merit of local option; that a law voted into effect by the people would have juries to cenoric tiolators; whereas, if the law was made to affect a community which had not voluntar Truly an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of prosecution. Violators of law there will be, we admit, in spite of injunctions, for the liquor traffic lives in atmosphere of contempt of court; and in spite of prosecutions, for the liquor traffic fears not God's law and regards not man's. Prohibition is not advertised as a patent porous plaster, which, upon its first application, will achieve a miracle. It does not expect to annihilate in a month or a year or a decade the terrible results which the liquor traffic by a century of license has wrought on the body human and the body politic. But still we urge our demand for prohibitory law, because the welfare of the nation demands it, and we submit that violations of any good law, so far from being an argument against it, are the supreme argument for it. If prohibition be a state's policy, as it clearly is against it, are the supreme argument for it. If prohibition be a state's policy, as it clearly is that of the state of Georgia, she should so declare upon the statute book; and provide her officers with remedies to enforce it. And if there are communities in which the saloon is so powerful that judges and officers and juries would all be recreant to their oaths; yet, nevertheless, the law itself is an éducative influence on the public mind, and by making null and void all contracts for intoxicating drink, would fatally cripple the traile. These advantages of the law operating throughout the state are greater than the disadvantages of its defective enforcement in a few localities.

defective enforcement in a few localities.

A NATIONAL QUESTION.

But in the demand for state prohibition, we must still realize that we have not "risen to the height of this great argument." Border-states and outlying states under existing law, can impede and embarrass state prohibition just as border counties can hinder and mullify local option. This is unquestionably true since the important decision of the supreme court of the United States in the Iowa case, decided the 19th of March last. The Iowa statute prohibiting the sale of liquor in the state except for designated purposes had been declared constitutional.

for designated purposes had been declared constitutional.

But Iowa prohibition was suffering from border-state whisky. And so the legishture passed a statute forbidding any common carrier to bring within the state for any person any intexticating liquers from any other state without first having been furnished with a certificate under the seal of the county anditor to which such liquer was to be transported, certifying that the person to whom it was consigned was authorized to sell intexticating liquers in such county.

The supreme court of the United States (Bowman vs. Chicago N. W. R'y Co., 8 supreme court Reporter, 6801 decided that the law was a regulation of interstate commerce and therefore act within the power of a state under the federal constitution. The result is that prohibition states are completely at the mercy of the non-prohibition states. If every

the United States in the Kansas cases has armed the law with a weapon which enables it to crush the defiance of the saloon, whose shibboleth "prohibition don't prohibit" is but the threat that prohibition shall not prohibit. There has been much force in this argument, but that force is now taken from it by the decision of the supreme court in the Kansas cases, in which they decide that the legislature may declar the way reliable and sulcons. It has accuracy no which they decide that the legislature may deciare broweries and saloons to be common nuisances, and empower the judges of the courts to enjoin and abate them as such. This method of visiting the majesty of the law upon these enemies of good order and social welfare is far superior to the method of enforcing the is the superior to the method of entoring the statute by criminal proceedings for its violation; superior, because it deprives the law breaker of the opportunity to get some ally on the jury, who will prevent conviction; and because the injunction stops the mischief in advance, instead of punishing it after it is done. Truly an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of prosecution. Violators of law there will be. of prosecution. Violators of law there will be, we admit, in spite of injunctions, for the liquor traffic lives in atmosphere of contempt of court; and in 'spite of prosecutions, for the liquor traffic fears not God's law and regards not man's. Prohibition is not advertised as a patent porous plaster, which, upon its first application, will achieve a miracle. It does not expect to annihilate in a month or a year or a decade the terrible results which the liquor traffic by a century of licene has wrought on the body human and the body politic. But still we urge our demand for prohibitory law, because the welfare of the nation detic. But still we urge our demand for pro-tory law, because the welfare of the natio tory law, because the welfare of the nation demands it, and we submit that violations of any good law, so far from being an argument against it, are the supreme argument for it. If prohibition be a state's policy, as it clearly is that of the state of Georgia, she should so declare upon the statute book; and provide her officers with remedies to enforce it. And if there officers with remedies to enforce it. And if there are communities in which the salcon is so powerful that judges and officers and juries would all be recreant to their oaths; yet, nevertheless, the law itself is an educative influence on the public mind, and by making null and void all contracts for intoxicating drink, would fatally cripple the traffic. These advantages of the law operating throughout the state are greater than the disadvantages of its defective enforcement in a few localities.

A NATIONAL OURSTION.

defective enforcement in a few localities. A NATIONAL QUESTION.

But in the demand for state prohibition, we must still realize that we have not "risen to the height of this great argument." Border-states and outlying states under existing low, can impede and embarrass state prohibition just as border counties can hinder and millify local option. This is unquestionably true since the important decision of the supreme court of the United States in the lowa case, decided the 19th of March last. The Iowa statute prohibiting the sale of liquor in the state except for designated purposes had been declared constitutional.

But Iowa prohibition was suffering from border-state whisky. And so the legislature passed a stante forbidding any common carrier to bring within the state for any person any intoxicating liquors from any other state without first having been furnished with a certificate under the seal of the county anditor to which such liquor was to be transported, certifying that the person to whom it was consigned was authorized to sell intoxicating liquors in such county.

The supreme court of the United States (Bowman vs. Chicago N. W. R'y Ce., 8 supreme court Reporter, 6500 decided that the law was a regulation of interstate commerce and therefore not within the power of a state under the federal constitution. The result is that prohibition states are completely at the mercy of the non-prohibition states. If every

I wish here to say, to prevent misconception, that prohibition does not propose to stop the manufacture, importation, exportation, or sale of whisky, wine or beer. These things have gone on so long that they have produced diseased, abnormal and bloated conditions. have gone on so long that they have produced diseased, abnormal and bloated conditions against which prohibition has tremendous difficulties in making its way, and on account of which it is necessary to guard all traffic in whisky with extreme restrainsts. But as soon as these conditions, for which the liquor traffic is responsible, disappear, prohibition will be nothing more than the prevention of the public evils of dramshops.

is responsible, disappear, prohibition will be nothing more than the prevention of the public evils of dramshops.

THE TARIFF QUESTION
is now bidding for a monopoly of newspaper attention, and threatens, like Aaron's rod, to swallow everything else. But the question of prohibition dwarfs it both in the magnitude of financial amounts at stake and in the import of the larger interests involved. The tariff, be it ever so important, is but a translent question of economic policy. Prohibition involves issues over which Heaven and hell are intent and the result of which will abide all down the dateless calendar of time. But, for one, I am not sorry that the tariff issue has become so big a question; for you only have to scratch it pin deep and you find the bigger question of the liquor problem bursting through it. The burglar-tempting surplus in the treasury is made up from two sources—the tariff duties on foreign imports and the internal revenue tax on whisky and tobacco. If the latter was out of the way, there would be no surplus to cause people to lay awake o'nights; and hence the question is squarely before the people whether the federal government shall be supported on whisky or on the tariff revenues. Politics is the science of surprises; and lo! in this situation we find the great Whisky Trust—the most gigantic monopoly the commercial world, in either hemisphere, has ever seen; we inancial amounts at stake and in the import of ever so important, is but a transient question of economic policy. This is a monopoly the grandest monopoly on this control, and one of vast profits to those engaged. Is the protected against all foreign whisky, no matter by what matton made or sold, by a turiff of $2 a gallon, which is a very handsome profit.

Now, naturally, prohibitionists would rejoice to bring all that of the latter the latter when the liquo whisky in bulk to Canada and the Bermudas, and bringing it back the same way, just to dodge their lawful taxes; we find this trust—this ring—these bloated smugglers begging the government en bended knees to keep on taxing their product 90 cents a gallon, and organizing a great movement, enlisting concressmen and subsidizing newspapers for the purpose of continuing upon themselves this taxing system. O, beautiful patriots! When I contemplate their anxiety to suffer by taxation, I am reminded of that greater service they will some day have the joy of performing for their fellow-citizens. How happy it must make them feel when they consider what a boon to their country their utter annihilation will be!

sider what a boon to their country their utter annihilation will be!

THE GREAT "UNNECESSARY."

The discussion of the tariff has necessarily forced a comparison between the subjects of internal revenue and the subject of tariff taxation—and this comparison has been to the prohibitionists odorous as a sweet-smelling savor. In the effort to hold over the whisky ring the protecting ægis of foderal taxation, it has been necessary to say some very hard things about whisky as a reason why this protection should be inflicted upon it. The Georgia state democratic convention of this year of grace 1888, in drawing the comparison referred to, declares that whisky is "an unnecessary." That is a new and somewhat awkward word, but the prohibitionists will guarance to make it current! An "unparison referred to, declares that whisky is "an unnecessary." That is a new and somewhat awkward word, but the prohibitionists will guarantee to make it current! An "unnecessary." Now, for years have I been a diligent student of the scientific aspects of the alcohol question. I have read lie big and Carpenter and Hammond and statafon and others as to the effect of alcoholic stimulants on the human system, and I had almost reached the conclusion, upon medical and scientific authority, that whisky was not indispensable even to the healing art and was an unspeakable curse physically to the common health, which, as Froude finely says, is the true common wellness or commonwealth. But I never did know it, until it was revealed to the infallible Georgia state democratic convention! Paste it in the fly-leaf of your Bibles and never doubt it again! But it was reserved for the Macon Telegraph to contribute the dearest trophy that prohibition has ever captured in this tariff discussion. That paper blighted its long record by declaring that "Mr. Cleveland thinks that internal taxes should be retained upon articles which are not only not necessary to comfortable existence, but positively detrimental to it!" Now in the name of all mythology at once! Is that what the Telegraph has been thinking of whisky all these years? The recording angel who flew up to Heaven with that slip of the editorial pon smiled as he gave it in, and dropped, let us hope, an electrotype process on the sentence which will regulate the Telegraph in altis future allusions to the liquor question.

The ground of prohibition, as a movement for the destruction of barrooms, is (not the morality of personal temperance, but) the evil results of these institutions to the welfare of the community. These evil results are summed up in three general propositions: (1) The barroom demeds in temperance, crine, insanity, disease, pauperism, etc. (2) The barroom causes the waste of untold wealth, and puts upon society the heavy burden of arresting, confining and punish to constitute the governing power in demo-cratic government.

The last ground is as cogent an argument as either of the other two, but it has been seldom dwelt upon, and for that reason I will discuss it. Lest the word "politics" may be reisunder-stood. I quote Daniel Webster's definition; "Politics is the science of government—the part of ethics which consists in the regulation and government of a state or nation, for the preservation of its active, peace, and brosperity; the augmentation of its resources and strength, and the protection of its resources.

On that definition, no place is too sacred to admit of discussing it. It is related to the coming of Christ's Kingdom.

The hardest trial to which patience can be put is in hearing the threadbare pathos of that worn-out pastoral, "Don't take prolificion into politics." There is just the same amount of sense in it as if when the federal armies had massed themselves in Virginia, someconfederate weakling had said: "We must conquer, but it will never do to go into Virginia." If your enemy is encamped and fortified in a Stronghold which commands the entire situation, and you say you are going to let him keep it unmolested, you simply surrender in advance of any fight. If the liquor traffic has entrenched itself in law and politics, it must either be routed therefrom, or else the whole campaign must be ingloriously abandoned. By politics, I do not now mean party politics.

ed. By politics, I do not now mean party politics.

Archbishop Ireland says: "Behold the culmination of the evil! This liquor traffic, consciously spreading intemperance, defying law, human and divine, has fastened itself upon the politics of the land and, rulture-like, holds in its talons, quivering for very life, the noble republic. Alcohol is king, making and unmaking laws, enforcing or annulling them at will." The truth of these strong and startling utterances may be tested by looking either at national, state or municipal-government.

THE INTERNAL REVENUE SYSTEM.

Turning to the first of these, what do we see? We behold the nation united in partnership on a national scale with the liquor traffic. Union of church and state is forbidden. Union of saloon and state is enacted by the congress.

Union of church and state is forbidden. Union of saloon and state is enacted by the congress. The internal revenue system is the mighty fortress of the army of barrooms. Prohibitionists are demanding the abolition of this unholy alliance.

I am well aware that such a demand raises the false cry that prohibitionists would thereby favor free whisky or cheap whisky; but this statement is as senseless as would be the opposite statement that the whisky trust prefers the tax because the ring has been seized with a spasm of virtue and is attempting to promote the temperance reform!

spasm of virtue and is attempting to promote the temperance reform!

Stonewall Jackson's fighting maxim was "Find out what your enemy wants and don't give it to him." Where your enemy is so shrewd as to be certainly capable of seeing what makes for his advantage, it is a pretty safe rule to oppose him. I freely admit that the subject is two-sided; that there may be some localities where temporarily the repeal of the system might be detrimental, but certain it is that the leaders of prohibition thought—those whose lives are given to the movement and who traverse and survey the whole field—favor its abolition. Their authority is not without weight. weight. I shall attempt a brief statement of the rea-

I shall attempt a brief statement of the reasons why many prohibitionists oppose the internal revenue system.

1. The first reason will be anticipated—the moral reason. This has never been better stated than in the recent address of the bishops of the Methodist church—"The liquor traffic cannot be legalized without sin."

2. The internal revenue system gives to the

cannot be legalized without sin."

2. The internal revenue system gives to the liquor traffic national recognition and legal status. Prohibitionists aim at nothing less than the total overthrow of the barroom in this whole nation. They believe that the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors should be confined to mechanical and medicinal purposes and to legitimate uses in the homes of the land. If so confined, the tax on the same curch not to be high or reax on the same ought not to be high or re-strictive. Produced and sold for those pur-poses, the article should be cheap. But so far as the internal revenue system puts the govern-ment flag and the government roof over the fountains whence the streams flow out into the myriad barroems of the land, prohibitionists cannot consistency dynami less than the total cannot consistently demand less than the total repeal of the law which gives it a government investigate and report upon the liquor traffic and its relation to public welfare. But Mr. Schade knows that if the light is ever fully let Schade knows that if the light is ever fully let in upon his clients, their occupation as well as his will soon be gone. And so he has managed every time to defeat in the house this measure which really provides for nothing more serious than gathering information. Not only that, but in 1835 he sent out the names of every congressman who voted for the measure to his henchmen in the respective districts, and had every one of them defeated for re-election. The infamy of this is only equalled by his effrontery in publishing the fact and taking great glory to himself for the achievment.

While congress is thus bulldozed, the states are also under the nurture of this tender and solicitous trust.

are also under the nurture of this tender and solicitous trust.

The New York Times, commenting on his report in 1833, said: "Mr. Schade. who is a familiar figure in the corridors of the national capitol, reported to his employers that he had made it his business, whenever a state legislature was about to pass prohibitory amendments, to see' the senators and representatives from that state and induce them, if possible, to interfere in behalf of the brewers' interests. Reports of the convention's proceedings do not show that the brewers were shocked by Mr. Scaade's description of his labors."

5. The receipt of revenue from the liquor trafshow that the brewers were shocked by Mr. Schade's description of his labors."

5. The receipt of revenue from the liquor traffic gives it a plea that it bears public burdens; and thus chloroforms the public conscionce. It is true that while it pays ninety millions annually it costs 900 millions; but there are some people who look at this like General Toombs did at his oat crop. The general was only an amateur farmer. He bought some fine oats for $50 and sold the crop for $250. But he spent $1,000 for labor and guano to make the crop. Somebody mentioned this. "Well," said he: "Any how, I made on the oats." So there are some people who look at the 90 millions we get from the traffic, and don't look at the 900 millions in taxation and damage the ninety millions cost.

I know that

gument it deserves respect; but it comes mainly from the mouth of whisky-ring advo-cates, and it does not lie in their mouth except so far as everything may do that proceeds from that source.

that source.

Mr. H. It then discussed the "pernicious activity" of the liquor leagues in the various states, and the absolute supremacy of the saloons in all the great cities, citing instances of corruption and malfeasance among the municipal councils. Continuing, he said: But this question also runs into

PARTY LINES.

Ever since I was born into citizenship I have voted the democratic ticket, but I do not claim that I have been a whole hearted democrat, and for this reason: When I had first become a voter, I made a visit to New York City. The newspapers said one morning there would be a democratic procession next night. I had an idea that democrats in the north and south were all alike, and so I rejoiced at the opportunity of seeing our northern allies. That spectacle gave me a political nausea, from which I never recovered. Shoulder-hitters, plug-aglies, professional criminals, barkeep-ser and barroom hangers on—these were what I saw in the democratic procession. I know there are many good and respectable northern men in the party; but I know the majority in the cities is of the sort represented in the parade. Now, I have never courted the infectious leprosy of the friendship of such men, and I have always felt a regret that the southern people were bound even by the slight cord of party alliance to the salconand-slum democracy of the north! But for all that I recognize that the democratic party has a strong claim on southern support, and I baleve that claim should be recognized, unless the recognition of it shall involve a sacrifice of moral principle. Hence, about ten days ago, I addressed an open letter to the Georgia delegates to the St. Louis convention urging them to see to it that in deference to the sentiments of sincere democratic prohibitionists the platform should omit the anti-sumptuary or anti-prohibition clause. I did not urge the democracy, as stated in the erroneous headline printed in The Constitution, to adopt prohibition. I would have sued out a writ of lunacy against myself if I had even imagined that the party would do that. But why should it go out of its way to declare against prohibition and thus offend the principles of those on whom it relies in the south? There is no excuse cocasion to appeal to that convention and beg them not to lay the RED-HOT BRAND of that infamous anti-sumptuary clause on the prohibition concience of Georgia and the south; and to warn them that if they do there will be such a hissing from Virginia to Texas as they never heard before.

If this be treason, make the most of it. Earnest as it is, I am glad to say that it is nothing in comparison with the treasonable utterances of the liquor traffic against the democracy of the south.

This same "attorney" Schade wrote on July 22, 1887, a letter to Senator Blair in reply to one asking certain figures about the production of distilled and fermented spirits. He goes outside of the subject and says: "Though an old democrat, I do not excuse the prohibition proclivities in my party." Was this ever matched for impudence? But the real fact is there is no impudence in it. This fellow is the real autocrat of the party. He could defeat Cleveland by merely giving the word. He is the only man in America that has that power. Why should he not talk plain? But he has been talking even plainer. In his paper, the Sentinel, he has recently said:

"We have stuck to the democratic party in rain"

has recently said:
"We have stuck to the democratic party in rain "We have stuck to the democratic party in rain and sunshina as long as we knew it to be fathful to the great principles underlying a free government. It has received our support, and to our friends the party and its president owe their ascendancy. Without the friends of personal liberty, there is no hope for a future success of the party, as it is constituted now, will be a calamity to the country, as another lease of life on the same terms and with the same faithless leaders will only increase the undemocratic diseases, and necessarily destroy the whole body almost in no time."

Now, what was the cause of all this fury? Simply this: One democratic congressman al-

body almost in no time."

Now, what was the cause of all this fury?

Simply this: One democratic congressman allowed himself to have his name appear as vice-president of the congressional temperance society, and another was placed on the executive committee. That society is simply a moral suasion organization; and even in that line of work they did not succeed in keeping Senator Voorhees from getting into such a state that his adversary could say to him in the senate: "If this was a police court, you would be sent to the rock pile for being drunk and disorderly."

But Voorhees is a senator after Schade's own heart, and when two democrats joined the Congressional Temperance society and thereby might be the means of getting Senator Voorhees and others to quit the patronage of the congressional cold-tea restaurant, Mr. Schade is all torn to pieces and rages like a behemoth!

And yet forsooth there are politicians who think democratic prohibitionists ought to submit to a plank in the platform which tramples ruthlessly on their convictions! while Grand Mogul Schade must be wheedled and coaxed and pleaded with not to desert the democracy, just because two congressmen have taken the pledge. Again I repeat the sontiment expressed in the letter referred to and say, "I trust that the St. Louis platform will permit a self-respecting prohibitionist to remain in the democratic party." If it does not, the responsibility will not be with those who are forced out, but those who force them out.

It is a favorite maxim of democratic antisibility will not be with those who are forced out, but those who force them out.

It is a favorite maxim of democratic antiprohibitionists that prohibition should not be carried into party politics. Why then should they insert a plank ou that subject in the party platform? The republican party makes no issue on the subject. Why should the democratic party go out of its way to drag the question into politics? If they will do it, in spite of protest from the prohibition element, the people will see exactly who they are that have forced the question in party politics, and no juggling of words can conceal the truth that the very men who clamor against prohibition in politics are those who have thrust it there.

prohibition in politics are those who have thrust it there.

By a natural and fitting succession, the power to rally "the nigger," to hoodwink and delude him, and to mass his votes, has passed from the old death-ridden republican crowd in the south to the barrooms. And I look to see the same sentiment of self-preservation that crushed the old regime crush the successor. The solidarity of the south cannot abide any element that does business on the negro vote.

And the ban-ner which we now carry in the fight, though perhaps at some moment of the struggle it may droop over our sinking heads, yet will float again in the eye of heaven, and will be borne by the firm hands of a rejoicing people, per-haps not to an easy but to a certain and not distant victory."

MEDICAL

The Result of Merit.

When anything stands a test of any years among a discriminating ple, it is pretty good evidence that there is merit somewhere. Few, if any, medicines have met with such continued success and popularity as has marked the progress of andreth's Pills, which, after a rial of over fifty years, are conceded o be the safest and most effectual blood purifier, tonic and alterative ever introduced to the public.

That this is the result of merit. and that Brandreth's Pills perform all that is claimed for them, is conclusively proved by the fact that those who regard them with the greatest favor are those who have used them the longest. Brandreth's Pills are sold in every drug and medicine store, either plain or sugar-coated. fol and r meo d &wky

The Result of Merit.

When anything stands a test of ofty years among a discriminating le, it is pretty good evidence that there is merit somewhere. Few, if any, medicines have met with such continued success and popularity as has marked the progress of frandreth's Pills, which, after a rial of over fifty years, are conceded be the safest and most effectual blood purifier, tonic and alterative ever introduced to the public.

. That this is the result of merit. and that Brandreth's Pills perform all that is claimed for them, is conclusively proved by the fact that those who regard them with the greatest favor are those who have used them the longest. Brandreth's Pills are sold in every drug and medicine store, either plain or sugar-coated.

BY J. M. BARRON. For The Constitution.

"In the event that Annabel Cato, my adopted daughter, who so mysteriously disappeared from under my roof four months ago, is not found within the space of five years from the signing of this, my last will, I, Robert Cato, being of sound mind, do bequeath my whole property, consisting of $175,200 in bank, and real estate to the value of $225,000, to William Robert Cato, the son and only child of my deceased brother, William Hamilton Cato, with the avecation of $200,000 which is Cato, with the exception of $20,000, which is set aside to be used in prosecuting the search for my dear child."

Thus ended the last will and testament of Thus ended the last will and testament of old Bob Cato, who had been laid to rest just three days previous to the reading of this will. There had been great excitement in Stampville four months previous to the above, when the local paper, owing to the prominence of the parties, came out with an "extra" containing the startling information that "Annabel Cato, the beautiful, graceful and accomplished adopted daughter of Mr. Bob Cato, one of our most influential and Christian citizens, has been mysteriously missing for several days past, and the most diligent search has failed to develop the slightest clue as to the whereabouts of the unfortunate young lady," etc. This announcement was followed in the regular issue of the Stampville Sun with a to the recovery of Annabel Cato." Notwithstanding the reward had been regularly inserted in the Stampville paper and other periodicals of the country, not the slightest information had been received, up to the time of Mr. Cato's death, which furnished the faintest hope of the recovery of the poor girl. Although the search for the girl had been going on since her disappearance, the excitement occasioned by the abduction-for such it was generally conceded to be-had somewhat abated, but the death of Mr. Cato, together with the proviso in the will, had stimulated new interest in the case, and at this time the excitement was little less than it was on that memorable occasion. Several of the citizens had announced their intention of keeping up the search until she was found, and the most earnest one among this number was Malvern Hill, the young and handsome attorney, who had been appointed executor of the estate, until the expiration of the stipulated five years, when he was to turn over the property, according to the dictation of the will, to

William Robert Cato.

"This is a strange case to me," said Malvern, addressing himself when alone in his room, a few days afterward. "In the will made six months ago, Cato's whole property was left to Annabel Cato. Two months afterward she disappears; now the will is made in favor of William Robert Cato, provided"-and here Malvern slightly shuddered-"Annabel is not found. The question that bothers me now is, Is Robert Cato in any way responsible for the missing of Annabel Cato? Well, he has a very good reputation; I don't know a single thing derogatory to his character, yet there is the munificent sum of $400,000 involved. Isn't that calculated to make the average man a little 'tricky,' when by getting Annabel out of the way he falls heir to something like half a million? I think so. Is Annabel Cato alive? God grant that she is! If she is alive, I, of all men, should be the one to find her. For don't I love her better than anything else on this earth? What did she say to me the last time that we were together: 'Malvern, if the time should ever come for us to separate, remember, dear, one thing-it will not be with my consent. I don't know exactly why, but, Malvern, at times I feel that something awful will happen to me some day!' How well I remember now the look of fear that came over her when I chased her for her foolish fears. 'No one would harm you, Anna,' I said to her. 'Oh, but you do not know,' she answered, her beautiful eyes filling with tears! And so it is as she feared: some one has harmed her, and that one is William Cato! Have a care, Mr. Cato, for Malvern Hill is on your trail, and woe be unto you if I run you down, for as sure as I love Annabel Cato, if you be guilty of this atrocious act you will land in the home provided for all of your stripe-the peniten-

II. Time wore on. Days had lengthened into weeks, weeks into months, months into years. Four years and a half had passed, and no tidings of Annabel Cato. The episode had almost been forgotten. Searching parties had coured the country far and near. Malvern Hill alone kept up the search. Poor Malvern! the mental strain had been almost more than he could bear, yet he kept going, never stopping-first here, then there-now in a city, now in the deep, dark recesses of the moun tains-anywhere, everywhere-only to find the one who was now a thousand times dearer than life itself. He seemed to have grown twenty years older during these four short

Sitting alone in his room one day, with his face buried in his hands, Malvern was arou from his miserable reverie by a rapping on the "Come in." he answered, somewhat slowly,

Evidently the visitor did not hear the sum mons, for Malvern arose and, opening the door, admitted-William Cato, who, blandly smiling and extending his hand, said: "Hello, Hill. How's our health today?" "Moderately well, thank you," answered

Malvern, offering his visitor a chair. "And "Oh, lovely, lovely -never better!"

A moment's silence, broken by Cato.
"Well, what news, Hill? Haven't found the little black-eyed heiress yet?"
"I wonder you can treat that case so lightly, Mr. Cato," answered Malvern, somewhat testily. "Lightly? Why should I be so exercised over it when the girl was nothing to me? Because my old eccentric uncle picked up a little waif on the island of Cuba and adopted her as his child, and chose to leave his whole fortune to her instead of to those who were entitled to it, and she happens to take it into her head to run away and spurn his magnanimity, then I suppose that I should grieve and shed bitter tears every time I have occasion to speak of her? Oh, no, thank you! I do grieve to some extent, though—for fear that she will return a little too soon for my-pocket. But if she Cato stopped short. "What would you say?" asked Malvern.

agerly. "I would say nothing—unless I wanted to. "Then you know some-"
"I know nothing!" interrupted Cato, who emed to have interpreted his question.

"How do you know his first will left everything to Miss Cato?" asked Malvern, quickly.
"How do I know? Easy enough. He and I had a little 'spat' some years ago, and he de-nounced me as a villain, a thief, a scapegrace, worthless rascal, and several other little endearing names too numerous to mention, and wound up his compliments by disinheriting me, and at the same time informing me of his intention of leaving Annabel all his property.

"But you got it at last?" "No; but I will get it, you know. Oh, yes; "No; but I will get it, you know. On, yes, after. Miss Cato ran away we made up, and of course you know the balance."
"After Miss Cato ran away?" questioned Malvern, scornfully.
"Yes."
"Use do you know she ran away?"

"Oh, I don't know-probably she walked-anyway she has flown!" with a chuckle. Malvern was boiling over with indignation at this juncture, while his tormentor was rocking to and fro with as much indifference as it is possible for a man to have under the circum-"By the way," asked Cato, rising and reaching for his hat, "how much longer before these miserable five years are up? I am rather short of pocket." "It is some time yet," answered Malvern.

"Oh, I know exactly; it is just five months and four days," replied Cato, exultantly.

"Then why do you ask me?" "Oh, I just wanted to see if you were keeping up with the little matter; that's all.

"I hope she will yet return in time to thwart you in your hellish designs, villain!" retorted Malvern angrily, his eyes blazing. "Thank you for your well wishes and compliment," answered Cato, lightly. Unable longer to conceal his suspicions regarding Cato in connection with Annabel Cato, Malvern Hill turned upon him with a look of hatred that was withering in its intensity, and "I believe you have abducted that girl, with the intention of defrauding her out of what belongs to her, according to the first will, and God only knows what you have already done or intend doing, when you get possession of the poor girl's rightful inheritance!"

This had the effect of sobering and bringing

Cato to his senses. Turning first red, then pale, he arose from his sitting posture, and facing Malvern, with his eyes flashing and bosom heaving, exclaimed: "That is an infamous lie, Malvern Hill!" Scarcely had this remark left the lips of Cato ere Malvern's right arm shot forward and Cato received a terrible blow between the eyes, which had the effect of completely staggering him for an instant. Nothing daunted however, he arose and with a terrible oath made for his adversary. Then followed what doubtless would have been a serious encounter had not friends in an adjoining room, attracted by the scuffle, rushed in and stopped the diffi-

A few hastily chosen words spoken by Malvern explained matters, and the parties re tired, taking Cato with them; not, however, until he had warned Hill that he would see him again.

III. A lapse of five months brings us again to Malvern Hill's bachelor apartments. Seated in one corner of his room, his hat pulled over his eyes, nervously fingering his watch chain, he was the perfect picture of utter helplessness. Only four more days, and all would be lost! What could be done? Surely there was some means by which Annabel could be found! But no! Hadn't he tried everything? Hadn't he wandered the world over almost without the least trace of his missing love?

"Oh, God," moaned Malvern, "be merciful to Annabel Cato, wherever she is. Deal gently and kindly with her, for if ever a poor mortal needed the protection that You alone can give, she is that mortal! If she be in the hands of enemies, guide and protect her, and at last deliver her unharmed into the hands of her friends, I beseech Thee!"

A gruff "hello!" from the outside caused Malvern to start nervously from his seat. With something akin to evil forebodings, he cautiously approached the door and asked in as steady a voice as possible:

"Well, who are you?" And without waiting for an answer he boldly drew back the deor. Horror of horrors! what a sight met his gaze! A veritable bundle of walking rags! My, how ragged he was! And dirty! fail in the attempt at description! Malvern think of the tale soon to be unfolded by this uncouth-looking individual. Had he known, he would then and there have fallen on his neck and blessed him! "Well?" asked Malvern, with his eyes riveted on the strange visitor, "I haven't a card with me," said the tramp ironically, "but my name is Wreck-W-r-e-c-k. Do you fully comprehend? W-r-e-c-k!" Malvern could not suppress a smile, and felt like laughing outright. Eyeing him a moment,

"That's right-call me Wreck." Without another word the tramp strode into the room, and going straight to Malvern's cushioned chair took a seat, with a comfortable grunt as he sank down to its bottom. Malvern took a chair opp Without any more ado, the tramp commenced the conversation with the question:

"Your name Hill?" 'Yes, sir; that is my name. "I.tho't so. You know Bill Cato?" Malvern started perceptibly and answered n the affirmative. "I tho't so. You know Annabel-"Why, man, who are—"Be still, Buddy. You know Miss Cato?"

"I tho't so. You the 'zecutor of that es-"Yes; but who are you?"

"That don't matter. Has that girl been found ?"

"I tho't so. A reward of several thousand lollars has been offered for her recovery?" "Yes; of five years' standing." "I tho't so. And Bill never tried to get the eward?"

"Then he is the man-" "Be still, Mr. Hill. Where is that money Are you prepared to make a trade with me?'
"That depends. I don't understand."

"Are we quite by ourselves?" "Well, Mr. Hill, I am business. You sit still a few minutes, and I will tell you something that brought me here. I know Bill Cato, and Bill Cato-knows me. You understand? In case the young girl is brought back safe and ound, how soon will the money come up?"

"You villain! I'll have you in the hands of the officers in a few moments if you—"
"Be still, Mr. Hill. Have me arrested as oon as you want to. If you don't want to find her, why, so far as Wreck is concerned, she an stay where she is until her head is white.' Malvern attempted to say something in reply to this, but the words would not come.

"Now, the whole thing is this," continued the tramp, with a malicious grin on his face, "I might as well say my say in as few words as possible. I know where Annabel Cato is, and there is but one other person in the world be sides myself who does know. If it is to my interest to speak, then I speak; if it is not to ny interest, then I am a-clam. See?" "Then you will deliver her to me for—"

"Five thousand dollars." "And if I should refuse?" "Then she stays where she is!"

Malvern was in a deep study. There were ome fifteen thousand dollars of the money set aside by old man Cato to be used in the earch for Anna that had not been expended. Why not give this fellow five thousand dollars and end this terrible strain on his nerves, besides recovering his long-lost darling? Suddenly looking up at the tramp, Malvern said: "All right." She must be here within three days, or it will be too late. Can you do it?"

"I can have her here in twelve hours." "I will accompany you?"
"No, sir; I prefer to work in single harness." "But she might mistrust you?"
"A line from you will fix that all right, I "Can I trust you?" asked Hill. "Can I trust you?" answered Wreck.

There seemed to be something in this misthe most implicit confidence, and Malvern, seating himself, wrote these few words, ad-

"Miss Annabel Cato. Residence unknown." DEAR DARLING: Trust this man. Cast fear and suspicion aside, for he will guide you to
Your ever true and faithful friend,
MALVERN HILL.

The tramp put this missive away in some pocket, the exact location of which Malvern could not make out; for it seemed that the man was all pockets. Turning to Hill then, the tramp said:

"Tomorrow night between the hours of ten and midnight, I will, according to promise, deliver to you this young lady; not, however until the five thousand dollars are paid into now hands."

my hands." "I will be there with the money." The tramp turned as if to go, when Malvern stopped him.
"There is something that I would like to ask you, Mr.—Mr.—Wreck."

"Well, all right; what is it?"

"I want you to tell me all about this abduc-t out, and, in short, everything." The tramp was thoughtful for a moment, then he asked: "To be used against me, I suppose?"

ion-who was the instigator of it, who carried

"No, no; my word as a gentleman, it is only for my personal gratification." It must be understood that while Malvern would have delighted in handing over this man to the authorities, yet he felt that through him alone he was to discover the whereabouts of Annabel Cato, and between the two alternatives he had resolved upon finding the girl, and leaving the balance between Wreck and his Maker.

"No, I won't do it-at least not now. Do not fail to comply with your part of this business tomorrow night, Mr. Hill; for remember, between giving her up without the money and killing her, I will choose the latter. It is in no spirit of humanity that I do this, but for the money that is in it wholly."

And without giving Malvern any chance for further controversy, this devil incarnate took his departure.

IV. After a very restless night and a long, weary day, Malvern emerged from his room at 8 o'clock and wended his way in a southeasterly direction from Stampville, paying little, if any, attention to an occasional pedestrian whom he happened to meet on the almost deserted

"While I do not exactly suspect any treachery from this fellow Wreck, yet I think it best to be prepared, in case there should be any," and Malvern drew a fine silver-mounted resulter from him. revolver from his pocket, and examined it closely. "Hello, here is the place, I believe. 'Meet me at the base of Hawk mountain, near the Leaning Rock,' was the place he told me to meet him."

Taking a seat on the base of the "Leaning Rock," Malvern was soon lost in a deep study, wondering, perhaps, what fate had in store for him within the next few hours! Would it bring to him his long lost little darling; or was this tramp a miserable hoax? Was he soon to look into the face and embrace the loving form who had been so long lost to him? Surely fate would be kind if it did restore her to his arms, and cruel, indeed if it did not!

"It is now 11 o'clock," said Malvern, consulting his watch by the aid of a match, "and it is about time that they were—"
A long, low, scarcely audible whistle caused Malvern to start and spring to his feet. A moment of silence and the whistle was repeated three times in quick succession.
"So that is them! That is the signal agreed

Malvern answered this in the same manner, whistling three times in quick succession. Hardly had he done so, when the tramp stepped boldly from out of a dense thicket and came straight up to where Malvern was standing, with the simple announcement: "I am here." "So I see, but the girl?"

"Hand me the money."
Malvern handed him a roll of greenbacks, at the same time drawing his revolver. The tramp proceeded at once to count the money by the aid of a "bull's-eye" lantern, which he drew from beneath the folds of his ragged coat. "You see I go prepared," he said, by way of explanation, referring to the lantern. After his slow, deliberate count of the oney, every moment of which time caused Malvern's heart to beat wildly, he arose from the ground and called out: "Come!" Immediately another form started directly towards Malvern who sprang forward to meet it. There were no more doubts-it was Annabel Cato! In another moment the beautiful, persecu ted girl was weeping tears of infinite joy, clasped in the loving arms of her long lost, but now happy and contented lover, Malvern

My powers of description are too limited to attempt to picture this meeting. It is emi-nently better I hold, to leave to the imagination of a reader a scene which is beyond the power of the writer to describe.

The tramp was moving off, when Malvern called him back and said: "Mr. Wreck, I think an explanation is due to Annabel and me, before you leave us." "Well, as I have gone so far, I might as well go farther, I suppose," he said, taking a seat directly in front of Annabel and Malvern who were sitting on the base of "Leaning "Five years ago, or thereabouts," he com menced, "I was approached one night by William Cato, who suggested this thing. Then, as now, I was down in the world. I would not listen to such a proposition at first but when he offered the magnificent sum of five thousand down and a thousand a year for the following five years, I agreed to do it. "The plan of abduction was left entirely to me. It is not known, but I have a home in a cave in Hawk mountain, and it was to this place that I decided to take the girl if I succeeded in getting an opportunity to carry out my plans. At last, after a month of the closest watching, the opportunity offered itself and my plan worked. Miss Cato had gone out into the woods on a hunt for wild flowers, and in an unguarded moment I placed a heavily chloformed handkerchief under her nose, and in a moment more was on my way to the cave in the moun

At this juncture Annabel uttered a slight scream and clasped Malvern's arm tighter. "Arriving at the cave," continued the tramp, "I deposited my burden on a rudely constructed couch and left her in charge of an old negro woman, who has been my cook for a dozen years.

"Since that time I have made weekly trips to the cave, carrying provisions and such other things as I thought was needed for Miss Cato's comfort, but from that day un yesterday I have never seen as she will tell you, I suppose. Many is the time that Bill Cato has tried to find out where she was secreted, but I never would tell him. That very thing was the cause of our finally falling out, for when he found that I was determined on keeping that a secret, he refused to make any further ad-vances, and it was then I decided to come to you, and you know the rest."

Having finished his story, the tramp arose and without a word, silently withdrew in the direction of Hawk mountain, while Anna and Malvere, happy in each other's love, wended their way to Stampville, distant only a mile from "Leaning Rock."

NEW YORK STOCKS.

Stocks as Reported at the New York Stock NEW YORK, June 2.-The stock market today was dull and the most uninteresting so so far during the present depression, and was almost featureless. Alarming reports of the litness of Gould gave a weak tone to the opening this morning, and first prices were generally from 1/4 to 3/4 per cent below those of last evening. A general disbellef in the rumors circulated soon became prevalent, however, and the market, while extremely dull, soon re-gained its tone in early trading. The business done was entirely professional, and fluctuations were confined to the smallest limits, all except Union Pacific being traded in within a radius of $4 per cent. The last mentioned stock, however, was trong on a favorable showing or its report, just isued, which induced considerable covering in tock, and it advanced 1% per cent in the first half near. At the same time Missouri Pacific displayed ome weakness, but recovered a portion of its loss ter. Toward 11 o'clock the market again exhibited a declining tendency, and prices shaded off slowly, dealings from that time being utterly devoid of feature of any kind. The close was dull and rather heavy at about first prices. Sales aggregated 52,000 shares. Final changes are almost without exception in the direction of lower figures, but they ned to small fractions, except in Omaha, which lost % per cent.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, June 2—The action of the local wheat markettoday did not leave it very clean to the trade or public, just what the clique now at work in the pit is trying to accomplish. The market here openpit is trying to a complish. The market here open-ed firm, and after ½c advance, went all to pieces. New York was apparently bullish early because of covering by shorts in old crop operations, while other futures were about ½c lower when the ex-tinance closed armoon. The conferentive element, kept aloof largely and transactions were not as heavy as fluctuations would indicate. Bulls see the situation and are encouraged by light primary re-cipts, while the hears are watching the accumula-tion of wheat at the scaboard and light clearances, July sold at 8 % to open up to 88%, and then July sold at 8 1/2 to open up to 85%e, and then down, with hardly a rally, to 55½c. Later prices returned to 85c and again went to 14°c. Amoust sold early at 85½c and down to 85½c, reacting to 8½c. I ecember sold at 85½c, up to 86½c, down to 85½c and returned to 85½c. The closing prices in wheat for all futures for the day and week were: June 81½c, August 81½c, August 81½c, September 85½c.

and December 85%c. Corn was not excited at any time, although there was a fair volume of trading in the pit. Prices were advanced early, but closed below last night's prices, with realizing sales by the crowd; and the slump in wheat caused prices to go off about %c from the top prices of the morning. June sold at 551/4@55%c uly 55%@56%. August 55%@56%, closing at the obtiom prices for the day.
Outs were rather quiet and dull. June was weak.

July steady early and finally declined, but the other futures were not materially changed. The publication of stocks of hog products in this city made a larger showing than was expected, but are 43,000,000 pounds less than June of last year. Receipts of hogs were light and prices 5c hi her There was little disposition on the part of operators to trade, and the small business that passed was chiefly of a scalping nature. At the close pork was 2½c lower and short ribs 2¾@5c, but lard was 5c higher. July pork sold at $14.05@$!4.12% and closed nigher. July lard sold sparingly at 8.47% and closed at $14.07%. July lard sold sparingly at 8.47% 85.22% and closed at 8.52%. July short ribs sold at 7.60% 7.62% and closed at 7.62%. The Unmarked Spot Where John Tyler's Remains are Buried.

Hollywood cemetery is beautifully situated on the range of hills above Richmond, over-looking the historic James. It has been twenty-five years since I last saw it. Since then many accessions have been made to its members, both from civic and military walks of life. Some of Virginia's most distinguished sons—men who once filled the highest office in the gift of the nation—governors, military chieftains, dignitaries of the church, find sepulture here.

JAMES MONROE. In 1858, amid "great ceremony and pomp," the remains of Ex-President Monroe were brought from New York city, where he died in 1831, and placed in Hollywood. His grave is marked by an inexpensive monument, bearing appropriate inscription.

In the life of James Monroe we have In the life of James Monroe we have a fine illustration and type of American civilization as it was in that period of the country's history. Descended from Cavalier stock—liberally educated, served in the war of the revolution, instructed in the law by Jefferson, served as legislator and in both houses of congress, representative of his government at the court of France, served two terms as president of the United States, he left a great impress on the history of the country and on the times in which he lived. Madison said of him that "the country never appreciated the robust understanding of Monroe." On the completion of his second term as president he retired to Oak Hill, his country roe." On the completion of his second term as president he retired to Oak Hill, his country seat, in Loudon county, Va., where, within a short time, his wife was taken from him by death. Broken down in spirit over this event, and greatly harrassed by debt withal he went to reside with his son-in-law, Samuel L. Gouveneur, of New York, where he remained until his death.

JOHN TYLER.

the tenth president of the United States, was buried in this cemetery, and his body still reposes in an unmarked grave. The principle reason for this neglect on the part of the nation is doubtless to be found in the fact that Mr. Tyler was at the time of his death, in 1862, a member of the confederate congress.

Rather a singular train of coincidences attended the induction of Mr. Tyler into various offices. Three times he was called to fill vacancies occasioned by death. First, he was elected governor; second, he was elected to the lower house of congress, and third, he was called to the chief magistracy of the nation, made vacant by the death of William H. Harrison, one month after the latter's inauguration. nauguration.

Mr. Tyler may be said to have been a typical inauguration.

Mr. Tyler may be said to have been a typical southern democrat of his time. He opposed internal improvements by the general government, the United States bank, the protective policy, and all restrictions on slavery. As a senator in congress, in 1852, he made a three-days' speech against Mr. Clay's bill, in which he took position against 'a tariff for protection, but advocated one for revenue, with incidental protection to home industry."

His official term as president was characterized by the passage by congress of several measures highly favored by him. Among which may be mentioned the national bankrupt law of 1841, and the joint resolution of congress providing for the annexation of Texas. He had a stormy experience with his official household. His veto of the United States bank bill caused great dissatisfaction among the whigs and he was the object of much animadversion. On account of his course in this matter every member of his cabinet resigned except Daniel Webster. In 1843, Mr. Tyler reorganized his cabinet. Two of the new appointees, Mr. Upsher, secretary of state and Mr. Gilmer, secretary of navy, both from Virginia, met a tragic death caused by the bursting of a gun on the steamer Princeton, February 28th, 1844. Our distinguished fellow citizen, Hon. Henry W. Hilliard entered the deplomatic service under President Tyler in 1841 having been appointed minister to Belginm. 1841 having been appointed minister to deplomatic service under President Tyler in 1841 having been appointed minister to Belgiam.

It may be truthfully recorded that as a leader of a political party he lacked the essential elements of success, but on the other hand not even an enemy has everimpugned his honesty or called in question the conscientious recitude of his official conduct. He was a man of splendid ability and broad culture. His domestic life at the white house was said to have been distinguished for its simplicity, dignity and elegance. His official life began in 1809 and he rose by successive gradations from a seat in the Virginia house of delegates to the office of president of the United States.

It is a shame that his body should lie buried in an unmarked grave, the very identity and location of which will soon be but a tradition. Here is an opportunity for congress to come to the rescue of the nation's pride from this imputation of neglect.

LIEUTENANT-GENERAL A. F. HILL.

On Riverside avenue lies the body of this gallant and trusted officer, with no distinguishing mark save that his name is moulded in a block of composition stone placed at the head of the grave. No officer, on either side of the great struggle, won more imperishable fame than he. His four gallant and trusted officer, with no distinguishing mark save that his name is moulded in a block of composition stone placed at the head of the grave. No officer, on either side of the grave and loyalty to soldierly duty, form one of the brightest chapters in the martial history of our common country.

An association has been formed of which, Colonel Palmer, formerly of General Hill's staff, is president, to raise funds with which to erect a monument to his memory.

CONFEDERATE MONUMENT.

The most interesting spot in Hollywood is the place where the confederate dead are buried. About 15,000 of these in which may be included about 1,500 from our own state, rest here. There is no visible name or other indicia to identify the graves. The officers of the cemetery have a record and diagram, I am informed, by which they can locate the grave and name of each soldier buried here.

The style of the monument is both unique and impressive. It is about fifty feet square at the base and ninety feet high at point of summit. As I first held it from an elevation in the cemetery proper, that huge gray pile filled me with solemn awe. It was "grand and gloomy." Fit emblem of defeat and a lost cause. Instead of a highly polished, towering shaft with gaudy triumphal emblems suggestive of victory, let it be rather as it is, the plain unpretentious, though substantial offering, of a poor people, who, in their poverty and prostrate condition, could erect no better. The earth yielded the stone, and willing hands quarried them and laid them up one on another until they formed a pile as lasting as the pyramids of Egypt; as the great heap of stones gathered at Galeed was a witness of the covenant of friendship between Jacob and Laban, so these stones shall stand as a lasting memorial of the walor and the unselfish devotion of the men whom they serve to commencrate, and the mute pathos of this rude monument will ever speak of the dauntless heroism of the silent tenants who sleep beneath, in words far more eloquently than pen could portray

Her body rests in the private burying-ground of the richest ecclesiastical corporation of the world, along with the dust of the Hamiltons, the Jays, and the long line of distinguished dead reaching far back into collonial days.

Truly, it is the sorrows of life that make the world akin, and causes the heart to go out in sweetest charity.

THE LITERARY FIELD.

Some Gossip About Books, Magazines and Authors.

Authors.

A June Magazine.

The June number of The Century opens with the second of Mr. Kennan's illustrate-larticles, this one being on "Plains and Prisons of Western Siberia." The frontispiece of the magazine shows an exile party on a muddy road near Timmen. The subjects treated by Mr. Kennan are "Siberia's Enormous Territory," "Varieties of Climate," "A Farming Region," "Flowers and Mosquitoes," "The Forwarding Prison," "The Hospital Wards," "The Women's Prison," "The Hospital Wards," "The Women's Prison," "An Exile Maraching Party," "The Convict Earge," etc. There is nothing more astonishing in this article than Mr. Kennan's account of the hospital wards. He says: "At last, having finished our inspection of the main building, we came out into the prison yard, where I drew a long, deep breath of pure air, with the delicious sense of relief that a half-drowned man must feel when he comes to the surface of the water."

The Lincoln History in this number contains chapters on "The Advance," "Bull Run," "Fremont," and "Military Emancipation." A striking point in this installment is the account of Lincoln's reception of the news of Bull Run. In connection with the Bull Run defeat the authors as a that "West the "West".

reception of the news of Bull Run. In connection with the Bull Run defeat, the authors say that "War and politics, campaigns and state-craft, are Slamese twins, inseparable and interdependent; and to talk of military operations without the direction and interdependent. of military operations without the direction and inter'erence of an administration is as absurd as to plan a campaign without recruits, pay, or rations."
The authors give a remarkable letter written by Horace Greeley after the battle, before the battle
Mr. Greely having urged that the armies should be ordered "Forward to Richmond! Forward to Richmond!" In this letter, dated July 29th, midnight, Mr. Greeley says to Mr. Lincoln: "You are not considered a great man, and I am a hopelessly broken one." He thereup on triges the president to give up the war immediately if he (the president) should conclude that the rebels "cannot be beaten." Another point of great interest in this installment is the inside view of the relations between President Lincoln and General Fremont. The authors publish the record, made by one of them at the time, of Mr. the record, made by one of them at the time, of Mr.

Lincoln's statements concerning the Blairs and Fre-mont, given in a confidential evening conversation with a few friends at the white house. The last of the present series of illustrated western articles by Mr. Rooseve't is entitled "The Ranch-man's Rifle on Crag and Pairie." This, like the other articles, is accompanied by Remington's graphic sketches of western scenes. Another illustrated article is written by Mr. Theo-

Mr. Burrough's appreciative article on "Matthew Arnold's Critictsm," it seems, had been sent to the printer for the June Century, before Mr. Arnold's death. In the same number Mrs. van Rensselae points out some of the errors into which Mr. Arnolfell in discussing American art.

Professor Atwater's food article this month discusses the question "What We Should Eat."

Among his topics are "Standards for Daily Dietaries," "American vs. European Diet," "Food and Wages," and "Reasons for Mixed Diet," etc. His paper is accompanied by portraits of von Liebig, Bernard, Playfair, and Payen. The fiction of the number, includes some interesting chapters of Dr. Eggleston's novel, "The Gray-sons," accompanied by a picture by Miss Eggleston, wherein is depicted the young lawyer, Abraham Lincoln. The concluding portion of Henry James's "The Liar" is given; with two short stories "Selina's Singular Marriage," by Grace Denio Litchfield, and a love story, "By Telephone," by Erander Matthews. A biographical paper is devoted by Mrs. thews. A biographical paper is devoted by Mrs. Herrick to Colonel Richard Malcolm Johnston, the southern story writer. A portrait of Colonel Johnston accompanies the article.

In this number there is another article by Mr. Cheney on bird songs; there is also a group of poems entitled "Kansas Bird-Songs," by Miss Amanda T. Jones. There are poems also by Charles Edwin Markham, Louise Chandler Moulton, Jul'an Hawthorne, Francis Louisa Bushnell, Charles G. D. Roberts, Thomas Wentworth Hierdinson Mrs. Annie

The "Topics of the Time" are "Reform in our Legislative Methods," "The American Flag for America," and "Art Revival in American Coinage." The "Open Letters" have to do with educational and other subjects. The Century has of late been constantly dealing with educational subjects.

Mr. Elmund Gosse is the happy possessor of a camphlet containing a hitherto unknown poem by Matthew Arnold, the first piece of verse, no doubt, which he ever printed. It is the Rugby prize poem of 1840: subject, "Alaric in Rome," stanza founded on the Spencerian; manner, Byronic. Its authen-ticity is beyond dispute, Mr. Arnold having ad-mitted it, and stated his opinion that "Alaric" is better than his Oxford prize poem, "Cromwell." A representative of Sampson Low & Co. is quoted as saying to an English journalist that the firm has

At the great circulating libraries it is but little in demand, and whilst a few ask for the first volume, very few indeed ask for the second.

The fourth part of Dr. Murray's "New English Dictionary" is about ready for issue in London. It will comprise two sections, section 1 containing the remainder of the letter B (Bra-Byz) and the title page, preface, etc., to volume I, and section 2 the opening portion of the letter C, extending to Cass. It is announced that Henry Bradley is at work on volume III, beginning with the letter E, and there is reason to hope that the publication of the success ive parts will be considerably accelerated by the new arrangements. Appropos of the account of Mrs. Browning's youth, which is to be given in Robert Browning's youth, which is to be given in Robert Browning's promised reminiscences, Mr. Barrett, a surviving brother of Elizabeth Barrett Browing, writes concerning the mooted question of the poet's birthplace: "Mrs. Browning was born at Coxheath hall, county Durham. Mrs. Althaie, my second sister, was born in London. The rest of us were born in Herefordshire, I am the sixth, and, as you may suppose, know nothing of Coxheath. I am not even quite sure I am right in the name. I fancy my father was tonly he tenant. He married when he father was tonly he tenant. He married when he was eighteen, and Mrs. Browning was the eldest. My recollections of the past are all connected with Hope End, Herefordshre."

A statement has been going the rotates of the press that Mr. Page was compelled to alter the plot of "Meh Lady" in order to fit it for the northern readers of the Century, and that it was kept by the editor twelve years in the Century office before publication. A letter from the editor of the Century to the Tidewater Virginian states as follows:

"The Reproach of Annesley," the new novel by Maxwell Gray, the author of "The Silence of Dean Maitland," will make its first appearance, as a serial, in the July number of Murray's Magazine.

Mr. Robert Browning is said to have lately gone through the whole of his translation from the Greek with their originals, revising them in accordance with the latest criftcism.

Tolstol's presently forthcoming work is entitled "Power and Liberty," being an essay on the law of necessity in history, and a sequel to his "Nar oleon and the Russian Campaign." T. Y. Crowell & Co. will publish it, as they do all of Tolstol's books.

Mr. Lawrence Oliphant is seeing through the press a serious work upon which he has long been enceased, and which is entitled "Scientific Religion, the serious work upon which he has long been enceased, and which is entitled "Scientific Religion, the serious work upon which he has long been enceased, and which is entitled "Scientific Religion, the serious work upon which he has long been enceased, and which is entitled "Scientific Religion, the serious work upon which he has long been enceased, and which is entitled "Scientific Religion, the serious work upon which he has long been enceased. Under the circumstances Mr. Page will surely pardon us for stating that the story had its origin in a suggestion made by one of the editors of the Century in an interview with him in Richmond in 1884 or 1885. We then expressed to have a supplied to the proposing it. Under the circumstances Mr. Page if not tous. We instanced the great service done by Lessing to the restoration of good feeling between German-speaking peoples, after the Prussian Saxon war a century ago, by presenting in his comedy of Minna von Barnhelm' the virtues of the North German in his bernine. Barnneim the virtues of the South German in his heroine, thus allaying the prejudices of both sides. Mr. Pago's charming story was the outcome of his own entire sympathy with his view, and it is doing its share in the patriotic work of reconciliation.

ELEGANT SHOW WINDOWS.

The Prettiest on Whitehall Street-The Beau tiful Goods Placed in Them.

When you are out walking today, just take a look at the new show windows recently placed in John Ryan's Sons' store. They are elegant. They have both a front and side view and present a most attractive appear ance. There is nothing like them in the city, and are the admiration of all who pass by. It will pay you to walk up town today and look at these windows and the fine dress goods they contain. Mr. Steve Ryan has engaged one of the finest decorators in New York city to pre pare these windows. If what he has done in the past few days is a sample of his artistic skill, he is surely a genius in that line. "What do these large show windows contain?" did you say?

"Why the prettiest and cheapest samples of dress goods to be found in the south."

Messrs. Ryans have just refitted their store and are more able to wait upon their custo-mers with ease. A few days ago a mammoth stock of goods were sold at auction in New York, and the choicest part of it was purchased by this farseeing house. Tomorrow, they throw open wide their doors and will sell goods way down yonder. They have special bar-gains and if you miss them you will regret it.

MRS. ARP'S SOAP

DURING THE LATE TROUBLE.

Bill Thinks She Ought to be Paid for it-The Boom in His "Settlement"-A Chicago Man's Liberality.

The Rev. Mr. Bradwell is a good man, a good citizen and a good preacher. He is a colored man with a form and face that attracts attention. He is the presiding elder, and was well raised by a Savannah gentleman and has the manner; of a gentleman. He is my neigh-bor, and we like him, for he sets a good example to his race. Congress has just passed a bill to pay him nearly four thousand dollars for four bales of cotton that Sherman's bummers picked up and carried away to keep for him and forgot to return. The bill was passed unanimously, and we are glad of it. A thous-and dollars a bale is a right fair price for cot-ton. That claim was allowed because Mr. Bradwell is a colored man, and it shows the kindly feelings of the people both north and south to the colored race. Maybe this is the south to the colored rece. Mayor this the beginning of the great restoration. Maybe our white folks will come next and get some of that surplus that is in the treasury.

If they will pay us what they owe us and took from us with malice aforethought we

If they will pay us what they owe us and took from us with nalice aforethought we won't say a word more about the tariff nor internal revenue. I see there are a lot of claims being filed from the south, and I wonder if the claimants were union men so called or our members of congress just taking them up promiscuous. If they are all from union men they are getting pretty numerous of late, and I rockon will get more thicker, more denser, as Cobe says, if congress is going to pay them. Most all of the original secessionists are dead but the union men are lively—quite lively Well, the fact is, we were all for union on fair principles. A few wanted to fight just for the fun of the thing, but not many. Most of us just wanted to secede—to dissolve the partnership—that's all. We never proposed to invade their territory nor interfere with the government at Washington. We never hankered after a fight, and we never believed there would be any. I hollered and shouted with the boys for secession, but when the fighting come en I quit hollering and became as gentle as a sucking done. Mrs. Arp wanted to fight a little, but I didn't. Most everybody would have compromised but the women and the preachers, but we were in for it and had to fight or back down. We never invaded their fight a little, but I didn't. Most everybody would have compromised but the women and the preachers, but we were in for it and had to fight or back down. We never invaded their territory and if they had let us alone we would have let them alone and so I don't consider myself responsible and therefore they ought to tote fair and settle up. My wife lost a barrel of soap that we left in the smokehouse and she wants pay for it. It was good eld-fashioned lye soap made in the dark of the moon. General Vandiver occupied our house and used up all that soap in six weeks. He must have been an awful dirty man. I wasent doing very much fighting then—I was running—and that was our principle business for several months, just dodging around with no rest for the soles of our feet. The foul invader kept us a trotting. I met a friendly yank the other day who was with Sherman perusing this beautiful country. A mutual friend introduced us, and asked him if he didn't know Bill Arp. "Bill Arp," said he. "Bill Arp, the Roman runagee. Why, yes, of course. I never saw his face before, but his back is quite familiar." I met another one, the next day, who said he was up in the yalley with General Eanks, and I met another one, the next day, who said he was up in the valley with General Banks, and monkeyd around Stonewall Jackson, until he monkeyd around Stonewall Jackson, until he could run like a deer. He said that Banks was Jackson's commissary, and the boys thought it was cheaper to feed old Stonewall than to fight him, and so they always fought a runnin'; and when their wounded men got to the hospital, the surgeons always turned them over face downwards, to see whereabouts in the back they were shot. "We were the backbone of the army," said he, "and always tell fighting with our feet to the foe and our face to the ground. Stonewall Jackson was a spirit—a Joan of Arc—and we never knew where he was, or when he was coming." he was coming."

I have been mixing up with a good many of our northern brethren of late, and I like them. If they are fair samples, we will take a carload and make a contract for more. I believe lead and make a contract for more. I believe they will pay Mrs. Arp for that barrel of soap, with compound interest. The fact is that no-body but liberal-minded, conservative people will come down here from the north. The mean, bigoted, fanatical class, who were born better med will be the conservative people with the mean, bigoted, fanatical class, who were mean, bigoted, fanatical class, who were born hating us, don't want to come, and they are not coming, blizzard or no blizzard. That's all right. We will have a select population after while, and get up a cross that will harmonize the sections.

One of these friendly yanks stopped here last Tucsday and locked at our big pile of iron ore that is in the front yard near the depot, and asked where it came from. We pointed to the hills and mountains all around us—"Why, don't you do something with it," he said in surprise. We told him we hadn't been in a hurry about it; that a man by the name of Sherman came along through this country and burned down all our furnaces, and it made us so mad it took us twenty-five years to get over it, but we have swaged down right smartly now, and are going to do something. He came round to a town meeting that night and

ly now, and are going to do something. He came round to a town meeting that night and took twenty shares of stock in our new furnace and paid the first installment and went away, and said we would hear from him later. His name is Quincy, and he lives in Chicago. So it seems that the first cash money for our furnace came from Chicago, and Mr. Quincy said that Sam Jenes could be there and set a hundred sam Jenes could be there and set a hundred sam Jenes could be there and set a hundred sam Jenes could be there and set a hundred sam Jenes could be there and set a hundred sam Jenes could be there and set a hundred sam Jenes could be there and set a hundred sam Jenes could be the sam Jenes and set a hundred sam Jenes could be the sam Jenes and set a hundred sam Jenes could be set and set a hundred sam Jenes could be set and set a hundred sam Jenes and sam Jenes came from Chicago, and Mr. Quincy said that Sam Jones could go there and get a hundred thousand dollars of stock taken in two days, for he is very popular in Chicago, and all that was necessary was for him to say that he lived here and knew the quality and quantity of these ores. But our furnace is now assured and will be built right away. We will let some outsiders build furnace number 2, and then comes the rolling mill, and stove factory, and the railroad to Gainesville, and the waterworks, and electric lights, and a brass.

Tunnel Realiting Matatarh of the bowels, and the inflamed muccs membranes are the most fruitful of all known causes of disease. Out of them grow most kidney and liver troubles, diabetes, all rheumatic affections and gont. tory, and the railroad to Gainesville, and the waterworks, and electric lights, and a brass band to toot our horn. Aleck Willingham says his next ambition is an iron tower on Pine mountain high eneugh for us to lock around at all our suburbs, such as Atlanta and Rome and Chattanooga. Since Cartersville has got on a fittle boom Alcek steps as high as a blind horse, and is pricing himself by the front foot, which is a number twelve.

Sam Jones is a boomer, too. He made a roll cking tak the other nig t and drew six thousand dollars of stock out of the boys in a few minutes. One fellow got behind a post and hid, but Sam got him and naited him for five hundred. He got two men to quarreling as to which had taken the most stock according to means, and he sicked em at one another until he made them both double. I never saw such a man to loosen up the people and open ing to means, and he sicked'em at one another until he made them both deuble. I never saw such a man to loosen up the people and open their pocketbooks. He ran over here from Rome that evening and ran back next morning to work on the Romans.

Tom Milner made a talk. He began soft, sweet and low, like the gentle rumbling of far distant thunder. Nearer and nearer the storm came and finally was precipitated upon us with a terrific outburst of "Give me liberty or give me death," and then the furnace was considered built. It was a good, old-fashioned town moeting, and Mr. Quincy made about the best speech of anybody, for he had the money in his hand instead of his pocker. Hurrah for Chicago. When a yank is clever he is the cleverest man in the world, but when he is mean he is the meanest. I was powerful mad the other day when I learned that that contemptible cuss Higgins or Wiggins or Piggins or whatever his name is, had written and published a history of the war in which he had Jefferson Davis caught in woman's clothes, and that the book was actually used in the Ward-seminary at Nashville. I was mad enough to fight and let them whip us again. That same old lie that has been nailed to the wall a hundred times and now reissued and being crammed down the throats of our children. Hurrah for those girls who refused to recite it. Higgins or Wiggins or Piggins is a knave or a fool, and I don't care which. That is one thing our northern brethren had just as well to know and never forget—that the south is just as jealous of the honor and good name of Jefferson Davis as the north is of Abraham Lincoln. We reverence Mr. Lincoln and never fail to do honor to his memory, and if he disguised himself in a Scotch cap and cloak on his way to Washington, it makes no difference with us. I never believed that story and am glad that our folks didn't start it. I reckon that all these lies and slanders will wear out after white and the next generation will get at the betrom facts about all this business and pay Mrs. Arp or her heirs for that barrel of soap. I hope so. her heirs for that barrel of soap. I hope so.

The Presbyterian Centennial.

From the Chicago Inter-Ocean. A combination of circumstances tended from A combination of circumstances tended from the first to give the Presbyterian celebrations at Philadelphia a more than customery anniversary character. The centennial of the organization of the Presbyrian General Ascembly was, first of all, the incident that grew into the features of the year. Around this stage in its history have gathered events which will make this as conspicuous to the church as 1876 has become to the state.

make this as conspicuous to the church as 1876 has become to the state.

The centennial of observances have naturally brought the lines of the Presbyterian Church, north and south, closer together than at any time since their separation. The plekets have long ago been on a fraternal footing to one another. Indeed, the warlike element suggested in the figure of vedettes has long since been practically discarded. There has been more than a mere interchange of kindly, Christian civilities. The borders have been lengthened, the stakes have been strengthened. These churches are very near the point of con-These churches are very near the point of contact. The celebration of the 100th anniversary of the parent general assembly, as it has been observed, will not be without its lasting effect upon both branches of this strong, energetic denomination.

President Cleveland's remarks on Wednesder to the province of t

President Cleveland's remarks on Wednesday to the representative commissioners of both churches, north and south, were capital and were cordially received. His references to the old fashioned customs of three services on Sunday and the Sabbath school thrown in, as well as to throes which the youth experienced in learning that compend of Calvinistic strength and sobriety, the Shorter catechism, were in excellent spirit. The president has no doubt "been there," at least, as the Scots worthy would say, he may have taken a course at the grammar school of faith and repentance but may never have been admitted to the university of election and predestion. In the presence of ministers and members of both branches of the great Presbyterian family, his references to the divisions that existed and which continue were in good taste and spirit. Perhaps no more skillful plea for reunion could have been made than when he said:

"I am here to greet two general assemblies of the Presbyterian church. One is called 'north' and the other 'south.' The subject is too deep and intricate for me, but I cannot help wondering why this should be. These words, so far as they denote separation and estrangement, should be obsolete. In the councils of the nation and in the business of the country they no longer mean reproach and antagonism. Even the soldiers who fought for the north and for the south are restored to fraternity and unity. This fraternity and unity is taught and enjoined by our church. When shall she herself be united with all the added strength and usefulness that harmony and union insures?"

Weary and Worn.

When the tired factory operative, the weary out-door laborer, the overtasked bookkeeper or clerk seeks a medical recompense for expenditure of bodily force, where shall he find it? Could the recorded experience of thousands of workers be voiced, the verdict would be that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters renews failing strength, stimulates the jaded mental powers to fresh activity, and relaxes undue nervous to resh activity, and relaxes undue hervous tension as nothing else does. Digestion, a regular habit of body, appetite and sleep are promoted by it, and it is an admirable auxiliary in the recovery of health by convalescents. A fasticious stomach is not offended by it, and to persons of both sexes in delicate health who recessionally feel the need of a refliciant win. eccasionally feel the need of an efficient tonic the whole range of the phermacoposia and the catalogue of proprietary medicines does not present a more useful, safer or more decisive one. It is also incomparable for fever and ague, rheumatism and kidney troubles.

The waters of Carlsbad are adapted beyond others for treatment of this organ. Even in the early stages of fatty liver, there is prob-ably no one remedy that will yield as good restilts as a course of Carlsbad Water. GALL STONES are frequently evacuated in large numbers under the administration of this water, and often the tendency to their formation is effaced. ENLARGEMENT OF THE SPLEEN as a result of malarial diseases is also well treated by a course of this water. It also renders good service in cases of diabetes mellitus, especially when occurring in per-sons who are, or have been, of prely habit. CORPULENCE is not only an inconvenience, but often a disease. By a course of Carlshad Water with occasional doses of the imported Sprudel Salt, to

S. S. S. IS THE BEST OF ALL BLOOD PURIFIERS! S. S. S.

The Infallible and Purely Vegetable Remedy for the Cure of All Blood and Skin Diseases. Read Carefully the Following Voluntary Testimonials:

BLOOD POISON.

Mr. J. H. Brown, Hornellsville, Steuben ounty, N. Y., writes: Duty to mankind and obligation to the manufacturers of the remedy demand that I acknowledge the wonderful results of using Swift's Specific.

Three years ago I was afflicted with that most horrible of diseases, blood poison. In vain I sought help from the medical profession, changing doctors two or three times. The mercurial remedies used soon put me on crutches and brought on untold pain. I could see myself failing every day. My weight was ced from 150 to 117 pounds in six weeks. I could see no use of living situated as I was, and was so desperate at times that I felt like taking my own life. Friends interfered, and urged me to go to Hot Springs. I started, but on my way met a friend who persuaded me to with him, and to try Swift's Specific. I stop with him, and to try Swift's Specific. I had no faith in patent medicines, and at first would not listen to such advice. But my sufferings were so intense I finally yielded. After the first bottle I felt a great change, and by the time I had used one dozen bottles I was like myself once more. I still felt some pains in my limbs, and so continued the use of the ne, and today one would never think that I had been such a wreck and cured by that wonderful remedy. It stands at the head of all blood remedies, and is a blessing to all

Mr. D. K. W. Briggs, Brooklyn, N. Y., writes: In 1864 I contracted blood poison. Since that time I have suffered tortures from an affection of the skin, rheumatism and ulcerating sores. During those long years of disease I underwent treatment at the hands of leading physicians in Norwich, Hartford, e. Boston and Chicago. Failing to get relief at one place I would go to another, but met with the same treatment and effect everywhere. The quantities of mercury and potash I have taken have not only done me no good, but I believe it has done much harm. After taking S. S. S. six weeks, it is hard to believe my own feelings, though the fact that it has done more for me in that short time than all other medicines have in twenty years is plain and undeniable. Six weeks ago I was a total wreck, without hope. Now my rheuma-tism is among the things of the past, and the scars only show that I was diseased. When I began taking Swift's Specific there was a large eating ulcer over my right eye which alarmed me greatly, and no one who saw it thought I ild ever get well. Like the other it is gone, and thank God for the creation of the Swift Specific Co. and their great remedy.

Mr. Joseph Kern, 504 Brooklyn street, New York, writes: I contracted blood poison two years ago. I was treated with potash and mercury for over two months by physicians. I thought I was well, but the fires were only The eruption came out anew more violent than before. A friend who had tested it in a similar case suggested S. S. S. I began its use, and commenced to improve n the start. As the disease passed away, it left me with mercurial rheumatism as the result of taking the mercury and potash mix-tures. That is also yielding to the influence of Swift's Specific, and will soon be gone. To the afflicted I would say, give it a fair trial, and you will not be disappointed in results.

Mr. E. E. Black, 98 S. Fourteenth street, Newark, N. J., writes: In October, 1885, I contracted that dreadful disease, blood poison. I went under treatment of a physician at once. At the end of the first month I became alarmed at the progress of the disease in my system, and abandoned the doctor. A friend told me of S. S. S. and its wonderful effects. I gave it began to improve with the first bottle. I have taken ten bottles, and am today a well man. To all who are in need of a blood purifier I will say, by all means try Swift's Specific. It is the safest and best of them all.

Mr. S. W. McCarter, 76 Madison street, New York, writes: I have had blood poison ever since October, 1885, and obtained no relief from any treatment- and I tried several-until I enced taking Swift's Specific. In one month I felt as well as I ever had. I also had a good appetite, and was entirely free from the pains in my shoulder and head, which had tormented me so long. Now all the sores and swellings from my head are gone.

Colonel B. H. Kieser, editor and proprietor of the Opelika, Ala., Times, writes: While a young man I contracted a disease which stuck o me for years. For five years I walked with difficulty. Finally I tried S. S. S. After using bottles I could walk seven miles in a day, and I have not had a return of the since. I am 68 years old, and, thanks to S. S. S., I feel now like a young man.

Mr. Thos. J. Perry, Cuthbert, Ga., writes: Mr. John Palmer, Sr., who is now seventy-three years old, has been suffering with a fearful hereditary blood taint from his early boyhood. Mercurial rheumatism ensued, and he became almost helpless. I secured for him his bottles of the S. S. S., which has almost re-moved the poison from his system, and en-tirely cured the rheumatism.

Mr. T. E. Syphers, Brooklyn, N. Y., writes:
For the past two years I have been a great sufferer from ulcerated-sore mouth, the result of blood poison. I have for mouths received treatment at Bellevue hospital, and by a physician on 12th street, New York city, as well as by one in Brooklyn. I received but little, if any, benefit from either. So I resolved to try

Mr. F. Woehl, No. 211 North avenue, Chicago, writes: "I deem it my duty to thank you for the cure I received from your excellent medicine. I contracted a severe case of blood medicine. I contracted a severe case of blood poisoning about two years ago. Hearing of your medicine I went to a drug store, the proprietor of which persuaded me to buy a preparation of his own, which he said was a sure cure. I used six bottles of his stuff and grew worse all the time. At last I got disgusted, and despaired of a cure. I met a friend who told me that your medicine had cured him. I went to the same druggist again, and demanded your medicine. He reluctantly sold me twelve bottles, and I am now perfectly cured. I write this for the benefit of sufferers, to prevent their being deceived by false representations. Thanking you again for the benefit received from your medicine, I remain respectfully yours."

SCROFULA.

Dr. W. C. Parker, Bremen, Ga., writes Willie White was afflicted with scrotula seven years. I was called to the case and prescribed S. S., and today he is a fat and robust boy. Mrs. Mary E. Holt, Concord, Pike county, Ga., writes: For six years my boy suffered with scrofula Swift's Specific effected a per-

Mr. Frank Gilger, Danville, Ky., writes: had scrofula eight years in the severest form. Eight bottles of Swift's Specific made an effectual cure.

Miss Tommie Embry, LaGrange, Ga., writes: I had scrofula from infancy. In 1884, in desperation, as a last resort, I tried S. S. S., and I feel as well today as I ever felt in my life.

Mr. James A. Watson, Salt Springs, Ga., writes: A six-month-old baby of one of my employes developed a severe case of scrofula It's head was covered with horrible sores, and the child's health was generally bad. I persuaded the mother to give the baby S. S. S. which she did, and in two weeks' time the sores were healed, and the baby was well. The medicine completely eradicated the scrofulous inheritance, and the baby is entirely well. I regard S. S. S. as the best blood purifier in the world, from my knoweldge of its wonderful efficiency.

Mr. B. Drake, Lithonia, Ga., writes? I have been afflicted with scrofulous symptoms all my life, and so bad did it grow that one leg had to be amputated to save my life. I took S. S. S. and am now a new man, weighing 170 pounds. Mr. D. R. Wagner, Water Valley, Miss. writes: Our little girl, Jennie, had scrofula for six years. We tried the best physicians in New York and Philadelphia; also, Hot Springs, Ark., without avail. Swift's Specific cured her.

The following testimonial from Mr. Joe T. Collier, Vienna, Ga., is a striking exhibition of the remarkable curative powers of Swift's Specific in scrofula. It cannot fail to impress the minds of parents who may have children troubled with this dangerous disease. Mr. Collier is a highly respected, popular and wellknown citizen of Dooly county. He particularly requests the publication of his letter, so that other families, similarly afflicted, may learn, through his experience, how they can procure a remedy which will infallibly and permanently cure and eradicate hereditary scrofula:

DRAWER 3.

Three or four years ago my little daughter, six years of age, had very ugly boils, which, very soon after their appearance, terminated in running sores, all over her head and face. I tried all the known remedies, salves, healing washes, etc., but none seemed to do any good Her scalp was in a bad condition, indeed. Finally, I sent her to Atlanta to have her examined, for I had become very uneasy about her. The doctors who examined her said she was badly afflicted with scrofula. About the same time my little son, aged four years, broke out all over the head and face with the same disease, and for weeks he could not lie down to sleep without suffering great torture. His head was a solid mass of sores.

I began to use S. S. S. as soon as I was satisfied about the nature of the disease, and continued to use it until all signs of the disease had disappeared. It is now going on three years since I have seen any signs of the disease breaking out. Today they are as healthy looking children as can be found in the county. Before they began the use of S. S. S. they were frail in constitution, but now they look strong and healthy. I did not give them any other kind of medicine to aid the S. S. S., but relied entirely on it, as I had seen so eighborhood by the S. S. S.

Mr. T. R. Crouch, the writer of the following testimonial, lives in Arkadelphia, Ark. This peculiar case again emphasizes the almost miraculous power of the Swift Specific in the relief and cure of the most dangerous forms of blood disease. He writes:

Few have experienced so great an affliction as myself. For the benefit of the afflicted, I

Few have experienced so great an affliction as myself. For the benefit of the afflicted, I make, for publication, a statement of the wonderful benefit which I experienced from the use of your providential remedy. I have suffered for sixteen years from this affliction, of which also my father and elder brother died. Hereditary scrotula attacked me first at the age of twelve years, rapidly increasing till it reached its severest form. During all this time I tried the various remedies which I could hear of, and consulted various physicians, with no effect. I was pronounced incurable.

After the use of the first bottle of S. S. S., I experienced a decided benefit. At times I had as many as half a dozen of those terrible cancerous ulcers on different parts of my body, and the palate of my mouth was almost eaten away. I have used the S. S. S. with continuing benefit. I was in an almost hopeless condition, and could not rise from my bed without help. I now have only one of the sores and a stiffness in my left foot and leg, and can get about very handily with the help of a crutch. I have full faith that it will, in a reasonable time, restore me to perfect health. I used your remedy by direction of one of the most prominent physicians of the state. nent physicians of the state.

Mr. W. M. Green. Five Points, Jones county, Ga., writes: "My wife for many years was afflicted with a blood disease which baffled the mast skillful treatment, and finally resulted in a very large ulcerated and ugly looking running sore on one of her limbs, which which had been growing larger and larger for the last four years, discharging quantities of pus or matter, and was so rapidly undermining her health that I almost despaired of effecting a cure. I tried every known remedy, such as the sarsaparilla and potash mixtures and prescriptions of the best physicians, with no benefit in any way. My attention was called to S. S. S. I procured some of this medicine, which she began to take, and in a short time increased in flesh and strength, and the sore, which was then larger than my hand and reached the bone, began to heal. After continuing its use a few weeks, she regained her health and spirits, and the sore was entirely healed. She had been in such a terrible condition for years, and was so near death's door at the time she commenced the S. S. S. A. A. J. spectfully yours."

Mr. George O. Wellman, Jr., of Salem, Mass., writes: "I was suffering with blood poison, and was treated several months with mercury and potash, only to make me worse. The potash took away my appetite and gave me dyspepsia, and both gave me rheumatism. I then took sarsaparillas, etc. All these sarsaparilla mixtures have potash in them. This made me still worse, and it drove the poison farther into my system. A friend insisted I should take Swift's Specific, and it cured me of the blood poison, drove the mercury and potash out of my system, and today I am as well as I over was,"

A WORD OF CAUTION.

It may be well to state here that, like all other great discoveries calculated to benefit the human race, the unprecedented success of S. S. S. has aroused the envy of rivals who have sought to take advantage of its popularity by imposing upon the public counterfeits or worthless imitations of the genuine article. These quackeries are harmful, made poisonous by the use of mercury and potassium, whereas Swift's Specific is absolutely vegetable. It is nature's pure remedy, and not the dangerous product of the chemist's retort. We caution the public against these counterfeits and imitations. Be sure you are buying the real S. S. S.

ONE THOUSAND DOLLARS REWARD!

$1,000 Reward will be paid to any chemist who will find, on analysis of one hundred bottles of S. S., one particle of Mercury, Iodide of Potassium or any mineral substance.

CANCER.

PAGES.

Mr. H. L. Middlebrooks, Sparta, Ga., writes: My wife was troubled with cancer of the tongue near the throat, causing incessant pain and nervous prostration. She also had rheumatism. She suffered dreadfully. By the use of half a dozen bottles of S. S. S. she was entirely restored to health. There has een no return of the disease.

Mr. J. T. Batts, Columbia, Tenn., writes: My wife has been down two years with an abcess in her side. Last December she commenced using S. S. S. When she began its use she was nothing but a skeleton, had no appetite, and was feeling weak and very misera Today she is a new woman. Her appetite is good, her spirits revived. She is as stout as she was before she was taken sick, two years ago. She can eat anything, and she today thinks S. S. S. the greatest medicine on earth. It has simply lifted her from a two years' sick bed, put flesh on her bones and life

Mr. T. S. Maben, Dublin, Texas, writes: About two years ago a cancerous sore made its appearance on my face, and, as my ancestors on both sides had been afflicted with cancers, I was filled with gravest apprehensions. My attention was called to Swift's Specific (S. S. S.) I concluded at once to test it, and did so with the happiest results. The sore disappeared, and my face is well. My mother also had a cancer on the nose, and it was eating away that organ with alarming rapidity. I sent he one dozen bottles of Swift's Specific, which she used according to directions. The sore soon ceased to eat, and all inflammation disappeared, and the great hole made by the ancer closed up and healed over completely. Mr. W. M. Stanfield, of Hampton, Henry county, Ga., was cured of one of the most violent and remarkable cancers in the history of this terrible disease. He had an "eating cancer" on his face for twelve years, and it was about to destroy his eye sight. Numbers of doctors waited on him without helping him. About a year ago he began taking a regular course of S. S. S. The result is stated in his own words: "In six weeks I felt greatly im-proved. The cancer was arrested in its progress and has gradually healed and is today entire well, the destroyed tissue having been restored and the face filled in with new flesh up to the very margin of the eyelid. For several months I have considered myself sound and well, and today physicians pronounce me well. My case has been a matter of astonishment to my friends and neighbors, who witnessed my wonderful cure. The doctors who know of my case admit the extraordinary power of the Swift Specific on this dreadful and seemingly incurable disease—cancer."

Mr. B. H. Byrd, the Post Master at Lady Lake, Fla., writes that S. S. S. cured him of cancer of the face, which he says would no loubt have hurried him to the grave. Three skilled physicians treated his case, but gave nim no relief. He writes of S. S. S. "I do think it is wonderful and has no equal."

Another remarkable case is that of Mr. A R. Shands, of Spartanburg, S. C., who was troubled with a sore on the left cheek, con-stantly growing worse. He consulted many physicians, but none of them could do him an good. A short time after he began taking S. S. S., the sore disappeared. He writes: have every faith in S. S. S. It has done me more good than all the doctors and other nedicines I ever took."

Mr. B. F. George, the writer of the following ertificate, is a reliable and prosperous farmer, living in Hill county, Texas, his nearest postoffice being Milford, Ellis county. His case and its remarkable cure attracted much atten tion in his neighborhood. Any one wishing further particulars can write to Mr. George, or to Dr. T. B. Bond, the druggist at Hillsboro, through whom Mr. George got the medicine, and who furnishes an endorsement of Mr. George's statement:

"This is to certify that I had a cancerous wart or mole on my eyelid, as large as the end of my thumb, which had the appearance of cancer, causing me much pain and inflamma tion, from which I suffered a long time. Seeing the S. S. S. advertised I commenced using it, and after the use of a few bottles the sore dropped out, my cancer gone, and I was en tirely relieved. This has been several months ago, and I have felt no symptoms of a return, and believe I am entirely well."

Mr. Bond, the druggist referred to, writes:"I am familiar with the case of Mr. B. F. George, who is one of the most reliable citizens of Hill county, and bear witness to the correctness of the above statement. T. B. Bond, Druggist.

Miss Margaret S. Guin, Harrison, Washing. ton county, Ga., writes: "Over nine years ago a cancer developed on my nose. Its course ran steadily until the septum was entirely destroyed, and the disease had nearly eaten through the upper lip. The cancer had a surface on my nose and lip of about four inches. I had two doctors attending me all the time. but they were unable to arrest the progress of the malady. My lungs were affected, I had a terrible cough and a number of hemo I inherited consumption, that evil having carried off nearly all my father's people. My father had hemorrhages and affected lungs, and he was cured by S. S. S. His cure suggested that may be S. S. S. would do me some good. About a year ago, I began taking the Swift's Specific, and I have taken now only about thirty bottles. The effect of the medicine was to stop the sloughing of the cancer and to very much improve the condition of my ings. The cancer has gradually yielded to the S. S. S. until now the lip is entirely healed, the nostrils are filling up and the cartilage is being renewed rapidly. Persons who saw me a year ago are surprised to see how greatly I have improved, and how great that improvement is. I am delighted at the result. My general health is good, and I feel like a different woman to what I was a Mrs. D. D. Ware, of Keene, N. H., writes:

"In 1863 a cancer developed on my lower lip. I went under treatment at once, and from time to time since that have had medical aid in New Orleans, Boston and New York, with no benefit at all. It has progressed right along, and now involves my jaw and cheek. One thousand dollars would not cover the loss sustained through the medical and surgical aid I have received. I have certainly tried everything and was benefitted by nothing until I took S. S. S. It has done me more good than all else put together, and I will soon be sound and well. Swift's Specific is certainly a great been to humanity."

RHEUMATISM.

Mr. W. F. Daley, advertising agent of the Brooklyn Elevated railroad, writes: "Inooklyn Elevated rannoau, white. arms to twice their natural size. I suff excruciating pain. Your wonderful S. S. S. made a complete cure."

Major Sidney Herbert, editor of the South ern Cultivator and Dixie Farmer, Atlanta, Ga., writes: I have fully tested the virtues of Swift's Specific, both as a rheumatism curp and a tonic. It has done even more than its preprietors claim for it."

A. S. White, the famous writer on stenography, writes from 102 Washington street, Chi-"Your remedy has done wonderful service for me. For the past five years I have been troubled with rheumatic pains. My right hand has become almost useless, and I was gradually losing speed as a short hand writer, A friend of mine, Dr. Dederich, advised me of your remedy. I used a dozen bottles of S. S. S., and am now entirely recovered. I shall never cease to commend your excellent medi-cines, and wish you much success."

System Invigorator.

Mr. C. E. Mitchell, W. Twenty-Third street, (Ferry) New York, writes: "I weighed 116 pounds when I began taking your medicine, and now 152 pounds. I have an appetite now like a strong man. I would not be without S. S. S. for several times its weight in gold." Dr. J. N. Cheney, a well known practicing physician of Ellaville, Ga., writes: "It will, n my judgment, prevent summer dysentery, if one will take a few bottles in the spring, thus preparing the bowels for the strains of Mr. W. J. Pollard, Augusta, Ga., writes:

"I regard S. S. S. not only as the best blood purifier, but also as the finest tonic for reduced constitution or general debility that I know Mrs. Scott Liston, 116 Zane street (Island)

Wheeling, West Virginia, writes, October 25th, 1887: "Having used S. S. S. for the blood, I can safely say that it beats anything I have used to cleanse the blood and make a new be ing out of a person." Mr. James E. Collier, Petersburg, Va.,

writes: "The want of appetite and the horri-ble dyspepsia from which I suffered have entirely disappeared, and today I have as good a digestion as any man in the state of Virginia." Mrs. R. W. Wilson, Hopkinsville, Ky., writes: "When I began with Swift' Specific

I was in very poor health, and could hardly drag about. After I had finished the co S. S. S., I was strong and buoyant and had a good appetite. I regard it as a most valuable medicine for ladies in week, delicate health.
It is a household medicine with me."

Miscellaneous Diseases

Mr. Arthur W. Wright, of Nashville, Tenn., who was afflicted with poison oak, writes: My case was a perfect test of the power of S. S. S. as a blood purifier. A friend of mine had been cured of similar poison by S. S. S., and it was through his recommendations that I took it.

Mrs. B. F. Lightfoot, Fort Gaines, Ga., who was cured of dyspepsia of ten years standing, writes: My husband was cured of a twenty years' case of this disease by S. S. S. Your nedicine is a household remedy in my family, and I would not be without it for more than it costs. It would be hard to tell which has most gard it as the greatest of all medicines.

Mr. Charles H. Pratt, Palatka, Fla., who uffered four years from ringworm, writes: Three years ago a large sore formed on the back of my neck that became the size of a silver dollar. It finally spread all around to my nose and would not dry up. Last summer I took several bottles of S. S., which soon permanently dried up the sore, and I have had

Mr. S. H. Whittherne, editor of the Saline Courier, Benton, Ark., writes: Last spring I was dangerously afflicted with erysipelas, and my life was despaired of by my physicians. As a last hope I tried S. S., and soon found relief, and in two weeks I was able to attend to

Mr. R. C. Walker, Jesup, Ga., writes: As far back as I can recollect I was subject to oils. They would break out every spring and off and on during the year. There are scars all over me now from virulent boils. Several years ago I took a few bottles of S. S., and I am now entirely free from boils and I have been ever since I finished taking your valuable lood purifier, now several years ago.

Col. E. S. Cryers, of Trenton, La., superincendent of the Ouachita line of steamers, writes: I have been using Swift's Specific in my family for the past two years as an antidote for malaria, and also as a blood purifier, with for malaria, and also as a blood purifier, with the most satisfactory results. I live on the banks of the Ouachita river, in what is called the swamp country. Myself and family enjoy as good or even better health than the average needle who live in the hill people who live in the hill country. I am con-fident that S. S. S. has banished the malarial poison from our systems, and consequently given us good health. I use it at intervals dur-ing the spring and summer, when the system indicates being charged with poison, and it invariably drives it out.

Mrs. E. Hearn, 36 East Ninth street, New York, writes: "I had been troubled with eczema of my face for the past three years and a half. My entire face was covered with it, and rondered meso conspicuous that it was unpleasant to appear in public. I consulted the ablest physicians in the city, among others a celebrated specialist in diseases of the skin, who treated me during the first winter without the treated me during the first winter without the slightest perceptible benefit. I then tried the sulphur treatment and various advertised medsulphur treatment and various advertised neucicines with little or no effect. I visited several springs, including the Hot Springs, of Arkausas, during the succeeding two years. At the latter point I placed myself under treatment of one of the leading physicians. Although my general health was greatly improved, the springs failed to accomplish the object of my visit. The eczema still clung to me, and was a great source of inconvenience and discomfort.
After returning east fully convinced that I would find no remedy, an acquaintance, who said that she herself had been raised from bed and cured of scrofula by S. S. S., so strongly advised me to try it that I began, with little faith on my own part and little encouragement from others. I have taken it for two of three months, and the result is that the disease is practically cured, there being but slight traces of it left. Swift's Specific is certainly a wonderful remedy, and I feel very grateful that I ever found it."

Mr. Michael Long, Jr., with the Strobridge Lithographic Co., Cincinnati, O., writes: "I suffered for two years with a terrible itching and painful sores on my neck, arms, hands and fingers. No physician could help me. S. S. S. relieved me perfectly, and I feel like a new man."

Louis, June 2.-[Special.]-Cleveland and Thurman seems to be the popular cry. The Thurman boom made its voice disincly heard above all the other political uproar about the Southern hotel, although that portion of the Indiana delegation which put in an appearance this morning, are making mighty efforts to boom Gray. Chairman Barnum and a few of the Connecticut delegation, arrived this morning, and shortly the Missouri delegation, headed by Senator Gorham, put in an ce, and then came Congressman W. L. Scott, the Pennsylvania manager of President Cleveland, and in all probability the next chairman of the democratic executive committee. At noon the Maryland delegation ssed and offered Senator Gorham a aplimentary vote for the vice-presidency, which he, however, declined. They came to nodefinite conclusion in regard to the viceidency, but it is known that a majority of the delegation favor Thurman, although it is quite possible that they will vote in the 1st ballot for Gray, as some members of the delegations are inclined to the opinion that Thurman is rather too old a man for the place.

The Californians were somewhat demonstra tive in expressing their gratification when they learned that the Marylanders would be with them for their man. Senator Gorham said today that while the Maryland delegation would favor the endorsement of the president and his message as a general platform, they could not indorse the Mills bill specifically, and in his opinion the majority of the convention would be in favor of doing likewise. The California and Ohio delegates are also very much opposed to a specific indorsement of the tariff bill.

THE PROGRAMME OF THE CONVENTION, as now mapped out by the leaders here, is that Lieutenant-Governor White, of California, will be temporary chairman, and "Pat" Collins, of Boston, permanent chairman. However, it is understood that the southern men, who have not yet arrived, will put in an objection to this programme, not that objection is made to either of these men, but that the south should have some recognition. Henry Watterson, of Kentucky, will probably be a adidate for permanent chairman, and his friends say he will be supported by a solid vote In the committee on permanent organization. Mr. Watterson was the temporary chairman of the national convention that nominated Mr. Tilden, held in St. Louis in 1876.

Mr. Cleveland's name will probably be presented to the convention by Dan Lockwood. Congressman Scott will probably present the name of Thurman for the vice-presidency; Senator Voorhees that of Gray; Governor Green, of New Jersey, that of Black, and Proctor Knott, of Kentucky, that of General

Of course, Cleveland will be renominated by clamation, and from the present outlook it ems that Thurman will have little dithculty in receiving the vice-presidential nomination Both Ohio and New York are understood to be solid for him, and there seems to be no doubt of Pennsylvania, for it is well known that Mr. Scott will control them. Of the other delegation, it is supposed most of them will fall into line after the first two ballots for the choice of Mr. Cleveland.

HENRY WATTERSON SPEAKS. Henry Watterson said tonight that if the New York delegation supported Thurman, and he believed they would, that would be suffi-cient evidence that the president has exsed a wish to have Mr. Thurman on the ticket with him, and he felt confident that he would be nominated. While he believes the Kentucky delegation will favor Stevenson, they will yield to bove. Many Indianians came in and are making greatest efforts to boom Gray. Austin Brown, Indiana's national comm man, has charge of the Gray forces, and he says Governor Gray can sweep the state, and that the talk of knownothingism in connecon with his name does not hurt him. Brown is supported by Congressman Matson, who ecently been nominated for governor of Indiana. J. G. Shanklin, editor of Evansville Courier, and a dozen others from that state. Matson in particular is very enthusiastic for Gray, and says that without him on the ticket, it is likely to seriously affect the result in Indiana. He says he regards the Thurman boom as purely visionary and sentimental, and not dictated by good politics. He concluded by saying that the failure to name Gray "would rudely shock the confidence of the party throughout the cour try, and especially in Indiana, and will be co strued by our political opponents as a confession by this convention that Indiana is an 'abandoned' state." But the opinion of a man like Matson, who reported a two hundred and fifty million dollar pension bill, for political

THE PLATFORM.

Of the platform, Scott, of Pennsylvania, already has it made to order from accurate measurements taken from the president's tariff message, and a general survey of the Mills bill. It is understood that the original draft was mapped out by Mr. Cleveland, Mr. Scott, Mr. Mills, Mr. Carlisle, and Mr. Whitney. However, there will evidently be a fight made in this platform by the New York, Conticut, New Jersey, California, and other delegations. Ex-Congressman William R. Morrison will, in all probability, be made chairman of the platform committee.

The delegates will be seated in the hall in alphabetical order, thus giving Georgia's delion a splendid position near the stand. There will be little speaking from the floor, as all the delegates who have anything to say to the committee will be required to mount the SOME CONFLICTING OPINIONS.

Though a vast majority of the democrats who have gathered to attend the convention believe that Thurman will be nominated for vice-president almost without opposition, the matter is by no means settled. If the exsenator is the administration candidate the adistration has up to this hour declined to so who represents the president, to speak on the vice-presidency have utterly failed. He Says the Old Roman is Stronger Than Ever in Ohio.

WASHINGTON, June 2.—[Special.]—The announcement from Columbus, Ohio, that Senator Thurman would accept the nomination for the vice-presidency has created a wonderful stampede rush for the grand old Roman. Some of the most prominent senators and rep-hard at work. They have today seen every delegate on the ground, and tomorrow will make a call on the delegates from the Pacific coast at the headquarters of the latter.

The coast men are for Thurman and declare that his popularity with their people is so great that if the republicans should make a nomination unsatisfactory to the Pacific states; for instance, that of some man who, in congress voted against one of their Chinese bills, three states of the slope could be carried for the democrats. The Gray men met this argument with the statement that Indiana is likely to be the battle ground, and that the democracy could in no way make mere sure of it than to nominate Governor Gray. They take great pride in showing figures to prove that Gray has always been successful before the people

THE GRAY MEN. Governor Gray's friends are fighting hard, and if compelled to go home defeated by the overshadowing power of the administration, will do so in no good humor. It is believed that as soon as the friends of other candidates for the vice-presidency arrive they will join the Indiana men in opposing the administra-tion programme, and if this be done with general earnestness, it may have the effect of causing Scott to abandon his present plan. He certainly has so far been cautions not to commit himself to Thurman or anybody. One of Governor Gray's lieutenants said tonight: "We are pretty willing New York and Cleveland's friends should make the head of the ticket, platform, and name the chairman of the convention, but we are not willing the should go farther and name the vice-president as well." be all here and the Gray campaign be pushed for all it is worth. A few friends of other candidatdes are here, but little is heard of them Many of the southern delegates are said to be for General Black, but it is intimated that his name will not be presented.

OBJECTIONS TO THURMAN. The objection to Senator Thurman on ac ount of his age appears to be making headway, and it is helped along by a story con-cerning his weaknesses, one of which is to the effect that he can't get about without the help of a man servant.

Nothing new has developed concerning the chairmanship and platform. It is agreed that it will reaffirm the tariff plans of 1884 and indorse the president's message, but will probably omit any reference to the Mill's bill.

Having little else to talk about, the delegates now here are complaining of the arrangement of the convention hall. Of 3,300 seats in the galleries, it is claimed that fully a thou sand are so situated that their occupants will be unable to see the delegates below. Chairman Barnum and Senator Gorman inspected the hall today, and, on advice of an architect, suggested to the local committee that the seats in the galleries be put upon an incline, so that their occupants might have a view of the body of the hall. It then developed that the hall is to be used next week for the Saengerbund, and that the seats in the galleries must be placed on the level floor and be made temporary, so they can be taken out and small tables substituted for the convenience of beer drinkers. There is much dissatisfaction.

The arrangement in regard to press tables was all overturned this afternoon, the national mmittee finally realizing that the arrangement of space tables, as made under direction of Mr. Canda, treasurer of the committee, and Mr. Dickinson, stenographer of the same body, were entirely unsuitable. There is also some criticism over the exalted position which Dickinson himself is to occupy in the convention. Under the present plans he will be the central figure and the chairman will be back of him on a little higher level.

A CAUCUS TOMORROW. The Pacific coast delegates have consented to the proposition, originating with Maryland, to enter a caucus to be held tomorrow morning at eleven o'clock, for the purpose of uniting on a candidate for vice-president. Senator Gor-man, of Maryland, has been actively agitating the question since his arrival today, when he was made acquainted with the wishes of Judge Thurman regarding the nomination

Senator Hearst, whose name has been freely canvassed for second place on the ticket, has not authorized the report that he was in the race and appears to have no anxiety on the score of a satisfactory selection that will unite the various conflicting parties.

Indiana is unwilling to combine, and that state will be solid for Gray, as the delegates say they cannot hope for a successful campaign with Thurman on the ticket. The Indiana men organized this evening by electing a chairman and a secretary of the delegation. Simon P. Shwin, of Indianapolis, was elected national committeeman in place of A. H. Brown. Brown retired from the committee after eleven years' service. There is talk of merging the committee on redentials and the committee on permanent organization into committee on permanent organization into one, although there is opposition to this plan from some of the New England and New York delegates.

"Yes, I guess so; at least it looks that way, judging from all the telegrams and letters I have been receiving. But didn't I say two years ago, and again two weeks ago, that there is no office on earth that I wanted?"

"But, now, judge, the whole country is clamoring for Thurman for vice-president, and what are you going to do about that?"

"Well, I hardly know; it would not be very proper in one to decline a thing that had not been tendered him. For years I have tried to be left alone here with my wife in this den—speaking of his library—and these friends of mine on these shelves, but somehow they won't permit me to live in peace."

"If the nomination is given you, even against your protests, would not you feel it your duty to accept?"

"I have the highest regard for President Cleveland and sincerely hope he will be reclected. If I thought that my name would add any strength to the ticket, I am willing to make a personal sacrifice for the interests of the party. I certainly should feel very bad, should the ticket be defeated, to think that I had declined, if my name would have strengthened it, of course. OPINIONS IN MAINE As to Who Should Succeed Blaine as Leader.

Leader.

Portland, Me., June 2.—Pains have been taken to ascertain the prevailing sentiment among the leading republicans in different parts of the state as to their choice for president, now that Blaine is out of the way. While the information obtained shows that Alger, Sherman, Frye, of Maine, and Fairchild are favored by some, the representative men of the party seem to be unanimously for Depew, of New York, and he may be accepted as the choice of a majority of the Maine republicans. In this city, at the republican clubs this evening, the unanimous opinion was that Depew is the coming man, and at one of the clubs he was cheered to the echo. It is stated that 11 of the 24 delegates and alternates to the Chicago convention who have expressed their presidential preferences stand eight for Depew, two for Sherman and one for Alger. The remaining 13 have not been heard from, and among the number are Joseph H. Manley and Congressman Boutelle, two of the delegates at large, who, as is known, are now out of the state. It is well known have each has expressed his choice for Depew next to Blaine. The Maine legislature chooses a United States senator next winter, when Senator Eryexpects to be his own successor. Several well known republican politicians have ventured the prediction today that Mr. Blaine will now ask Mr. Frye to step saide and let him have the place, with the promise of him having a cabinet appointment. The chances of electing a republican president being uncertain, the opinion is expressed that Mr. Frye will refuse the offer, when Mr. Blaine will make a contest for the place and Mr. Frye will refuse the offer, when Mr. Blaine will make a contest for the place and Mr. Frye will refuse the offer, when Mr. Blaine will be beaten.

Arkansas Democrats.

The last ballot stood, Hughes, 117; Fletcher, 111½; Eagle, 98½; Fisback, 103; Rector 23. Cockrill, for supremocourt judge, Woodraff, for treasurer, and Atkins, for attorney-general, were nominated by acclamation.

Interesting Controversy Between Bismarck and the Emperor.

THE MINISTRY MAY RESIGN.

A Bill Which Was Signed But Afterwards Withdrawn-An Open Rupture Imminent.

Copyrighted, 1888, by New York Associated Press. BERLIN, June 2.-No sooner has Emperor Frederick seemed assured of some prolonga-tion of his life than the influences hostile to Bismarck bad warning of the coming troubles last week in a communication from the emperor, blaming Minister Von Puttkamer for abusing government influence at elections. Von Puttkamer offered to resign. Bismarck hastened to return from Varzin. In two prolonged interviews, he found the emperor desirous of reconstructing the ministry, including household appointments. He also found him opposed to giving his assent to the quinquennial landtag bill.

After the first interview the emperor consulted with Dr. Friedberg, minister of justice, who is now trusted by both himself and the empress. Under advice of Dr. Friedberg the emperor signed the bill, at the same time advising Bismarck that he hoped this concession would be followed by reforms in the ministry. A fetter of the emperor to Minister Von Puttkamer repeated his complaint made to Bismarck. Von Puttkamer has replied to the letter by detailing his administration of the interior department. Meantime the quenquennial law, 1 which outh to have been published in the reinsen-his administration of the interior department. Meantime the I quenquennial law, twhich ought to have been published in the reichsanseiger, was withheld from promulgation by order of the emperor, who desired that the law should not appear unless accompanied by his letter to Von Puttkamer on freedom of the right to vote. When Bismarck left the emperor after the last conference Thursday the crisis appeared to have been settled.

The ministry was to remain intact and the quinquennial law was to be promulgated Monday. Today it transpired that Bismarck had been consulting his colleagues on the order of the emperor for the postponement of the publication. It was reported that the experience The report, however, is unconfirmed, but ministerial circles fear the worst. The progressionists rejoice at the prospect of the advent of a liberal regime.

Owing probably to anxiety, combined with yesterday's fatigues, the emperor became worse today. His fever reappeared. The discharge of pus became copious, and the general exhaustion greater. Not Much Interest Taken in Legislation at Washington.

Washington, June 2.—[Special.]—Little or no interest is manifested in pending legislation, as all eyes are turned to St. Louis. There will be very little accomplished here until the convention completes it work.

At the end of the day's session only nine lines of the bill have been acted upon. At this rate it will be the middle of August before a vote is reached, unless a change is made in the rules which would greatly facilitate matters.

Mr. Blonnt today called up the bill he introduced in reference to agricultural experiment stations, and which had been amended and passed in the senate and put it through the house. It now only needs the president's signature to become a law, and there is no doubt that he will sign it.

Developments among the republican dele-gates of this state, who were claimed solid for Sherman, show that such is not the case. Even some of the colored delegates, among them Clayton, of Vicksburg, will not support the Ohio statesman, and it does not look as though he would receive the votes of more than half of the delegation. The Counterfeiters Arrested.

CHATTANOGIA, Tenn., June 2.—[Special.]—
The United States officers have succeeded in capturing two members of a band of counterfeiters who have been working this section for over two months. It is estimated that there is from $5,000 to $15,000 in counterfeit coin now in circulation, besides a large number of $5 silver certificates. Yesterday Fred Fowler was arrested, and today Will Ferguson was captured. It is believed the whole gang of counterfeiters will be apprehended inside of the next ten days. They have been doing a regular land business.

Amputation of a Seven-Months' Old Baby's New York, May 27.—It is but seldom that bleeding. Wherever arteries passed beneath this cord they were still further secured by rolls of rubber passed under the cord so as to compress them firmly. The cutting was done with an amputating knife with a biade six nches long and as sharp as a razor. This was made to enter the hip from the outside near the hip joint, and was thrust through the muscles, its point being made to emerge at the nner part of the leg just under the groun, thu s transfixing the thigh.

The parts overlaying the keen blade were then secured, making an anterior flap. The capsule of the joint was opened, the thigh-bone pushed up forcibly so that it started from its socket, the knife passing behind it and the remainder of the joint capsule cut, and the operation completed by carrying the knife through the muscles at the back of the thigh, thus making the posterior flap.

The remainder of the operation was more tedious. All the large and small blood vessels had to be securely ligatured before the rubber cord was removed, and all the bleeding points remaining when the latter was taken away had to, be controlled by packing hot sponges between the flaps. When the bleeding had stopped the flaps were brought together and sneured in place over the space from which the limb had been taken.

JOSIE IS A FREAK.

JOSIE IS A FREAK.

He Has Wandered Almost all Over the Union.

Chicago, Ill., June 2.—Henry M. Stanley and the Wandering Jew have a new rival in little Josie Friend, the ten-year-old son of Mr. Joseph Friend, resident of this city. Josie has a great propensity for traveling, and ever since seven years of age he has taken trips in every direction, and to all parts of the union. He is a freak in that his wandering inclinations are not the result of trashy literature, but rather natural. When seven years old, Josie and an elder boy started for Keckuk, Iowa. The larger boy was thrown off the train, and had to steal a ride home; but the younger fellow continued the trip, and reached Keckuk. The station agent sent him home. Three months later, he took another trip to Crown Point, Ind., and was again shipped back. Nothing daunted, he started the next season and went to New York by way of Buffalo, staying away three weeks and taking minute notes on scenery and incidents along the road. He was shipped home by the New York police, but escaped at Kalamazoo, Mich., and, on being taken in hand again, got away once more at Michigan City. Here his father got him. The 17th of last month he was sent home from school for sliding down the banisters, but instead of going home he started for California, getting as far as Glendive, Mont. The sheriff there sent him home, but he got off at Brainerd, Minn., where he was heard from yesterday. His father expects his home in three or four weeks, but thinks he will leave again for California, The only fear his parents now have is that some accident will befall him.

He Will Plunge Into Politics.

Boston, June 2.—The best known Blaine man in Massachusetts received a letter from Mr. Blaine today, in which the man from Maine states that he will return to America by the end of June and will at once plunge into politics, taking the stump for the republican nominee and doing all he can to advance the interests of his party.

"I have declined to be a candidate," said Mr. Blaine, "But I am still a protectionist, a republican and an American citizen, and shall do all in my power to help my party." He Will Plunge Into Politics.

Weekly Bank Statement. NEW YORK, June 2.—The following is a statement of the associated banks for the week endng today:

WHERE IS HE?

Another Man of Music is Out of Town.

HIS WIFE LOOKING FOR HIM.

She Tells the Story of His Departure and the Causes, as She Thinks, Which Led to it.

Yesterday morning he left. "Yes," said his wite last night, "he left here at about seven o'clock this morning to do some marketing for me. That's the last I have seen of the professor."

The "professor" in question is Professor

Charles Theodora, pretty well known in At-

"He didn't come back?" "No, he didn't come back. After a while I became uneasy, and still later I went downstairs to the next door here—Thomas & Jeter

now. It is in German, and translated, it reads:

"My Dear Wiff: I have decided to meet a gentleman you know. Will return in three or four days. Keep yourself quiet. Then it would be unpleasant to make it known all over Atlanta that I have left. It will be for the best that I have left.

"The gentleman referred to is one living in Cincinnati, and the trip to Cincinnati, if he has gone there, is one that he has been talking about for some time."

"You are quoted as saying something about his going off with a woman."

"No; I don't know anything about that. All I know is what the reporter told me. He said that he had talked with people that saw the professor's train leave and there was a woman with him. It may be so, and may not. I know absolutely nothing about it."

"Who can it be if he has gone off with any one?"

("Lecoldn't say."

"I couldn't say."
"I couldn't say."
"Who is Miss Alice Naylor?"
"Who is a married woman, an "She is a married woman, and has been run off from here twice. She used to be a cham-bermaid at the Kimball, and I think she had bermaid at the Kimball, and I think she had to quit because she was accused of stealing. Now, if she has been here within the past two years, I don't know anything about it. She may have been here though, for I never knew she was here before until I just stumbled on it by a sort of accident. It may be Madalens Beine. I don't know."

"well, you know he met her on the German Loyd steamer when he went to Europe last November. They parted company in Liverpool. She had gone as a sort of nurse with a family from New Jersey. Well, I followed the professor to Europe without letting himknow anything about it. A few days after I got there a letter came from Frankfort, Germany. My husband read it and tore it up immediately, and when I asked him what it was he said that it was an application for a position. A few days later another letter came when he was not at home, and I opened I and read it. It was from Madalina Baine. She said if she had offended him she would make it all right, and if he was sick she would come and nurse him. She was very affectionate indeed—too good to last you know. I found afterward that he had been corresponding with her."

"And you don't know which of the two it was?"

"Are both those ladies married?"
"Yes, both of them, and both of them over thirty years of age, while the professor is fifty-eight. You see, we used to quarrel quite a lot and he would spend his money away from home, but here of late we have had no trouble at all. We have been married twenty years, and have lost all our children unfortunately—and have lost all our children unfortunately—or fortunately, perhaps, It was a complete surprise to me, his going away. I just know what he thinks of it.

He taiks about being quiet for three or four days, and he may want that time to pack up for Europe. There is no telling.
He may have gone to Cincinnati. I don't with him or not. I just don't know what to think of it."

"Did he take anything with him?" "Did he take anything with him?"

"Yes, and I am surprised now that I didn't suspect something of the kind. He carried off a little each day, you know, saying that he was carrying them to the tailor's. In that way he had most of his clothes, and all of his best clothes, away from home."

"And you don't know where he has gone?"

"No, but the cashier told me that when he drew his money out of the bank here he took it in foreign archange—I've forgotten exactly what he

when he drew his money out of the bank here he took it in foreign exchange—I've forgotten exactly what he called it, but he explained that in England it would be more convenient to handle than American money. He had $470 and took out $450, leaving orders that I couldn't draw acent of money without an order from him. I am just completely lest, and don't know what to think of it. I saw Chief Connolly today, but he said the best thing to do was to get a warrant. I have not done so yet, and don't know whether I shall do so or not."

The plot was thickened by a bit of information from Captain Couch. It seems that on one of the professor's European trips a young German came back with him. The professor, so it is said, paid for her ticket, and she was to repay him by serving in the capacity of servant—time indefinite. Some time ago a German gentleman on Forsyth street came to see Captain Couch in regard to trouble in which the three were involved, but nothing was done officially, and the case was dropped.

The professor's case is a trifle mysterious.

A New Directory.

MACON, Ga., June 2.—[Special.]—At last Macon has a chance to get a new directory, and one that will fill all the wants required of it. Messrs. Will Logan and Ed Artope are getting it up, and two such names as these being connected with it, insures more than complete. These energetic young men intend getting up a book such as Macon has never had before in this line, and no doubt they will dispose of a large number. They have secured a copy of the new Atlanta directory, and model theirs after this.

Congressman Candler at Home.
GAINESVILLE, Ga., June 2.—[Special.]—Hon. Allen D. Candler, member of congress from this district, returned home from Washington last night to attend the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Gainesville, Jefferson and Southern railroad company, who hold their meeting here on next Thursday, 7th instant. This road has done a very prosperous business during the year, and will make a better showing than ever before.

GREENVILLE, S. C., June 2.—[Special.]—Governor Fitzhugh Lee, of Virginia, has accepted an invitation from the Survivors' association to be present during the military encampment, to be held here in July, and deliver an address. The "old vets" look forward to his visit with much pleasure.

New York, June 2.—At 10:40 o'clock this morning the Kerr jury, which had been out since night before last, announced a disagreement and were discharged. It is understood the jury stood 8 to 4 for conviction. Patterson fixed Kerr's bail at $50,000.

I then tried the sulphur treatment and various advertised medicines with little or no effect. I visited several springs, including the Hot Springs, of Arkansas, during the succeeding two years. At the latter point I placed myself under treatment of one of the leading physicians. Although my general health was greatly improved, the springs failed to accomplish the object of my visit. The eczema still clung to me, and was a great source of inconvenience and discomfort. After returning east fully convinced that I would find no remedy, an acquaintance, who said that she herself had been raised from bed and cured of scrofula by S. S. S., so strongly advised me to try it that I began, with little faith on my own part and little encouragement from others. I have taken it for two of three months, and the result is that the disease is practically cured, there being but slight traces of it left. Swift's Specific is certainly a wonderful remedy, and I feel very grateful that I ever found it."

MODEL OLD GENTLEMAN.

Eighty-One Years of Age and Has Never Practiced Any Bad Habits.

The death of Henry Woods removes one of Hart county's quaintest and queerest citizens. For many years he has lived as a hermit in a cabin, built by himself and only for himself, near town, not more than large enough for a dog kennel. His figure was lean, his face daverous, his gait shambling, his apparel grotesque. He resembled the great Napoleon n one respect at least—he was not "grand," he was not "gloomy," but he was "peculiar, and he was as independent and exclusive as Diogones in his tub. He did business in the smallest retail manner. With ten cents he would make as many purchases as most would with a round dollar. Five worth of flour, five cents' worth of neat, five cents' worth of coffee and sugar was big purchase for Henry. His face was ative stranger to water, but his hands man was concerned. Sickness came to Henry, and there was no relative or friend to take cal of him, consequently he ended his strange and anomalous career in the county poorhouse. As to his religion we know not; but, like Lazarus, he may now be receiving his good things.

Brack Adams, a constable of Miller county, had a warrant for the arrest of Jack Barfield and proceeded to execute the same. Barfield emptied both barrels of his shot gun at Adams, and then began firing with a pistol. Adams thereupon opened fire on Barfield with a shot gun, killing him instantly. Strange to say, Adams escaped unhurt. All this occurred in the upper edge of Miller county.

The Independence neighborhood in Wilkes county, was treated to a small sensation Sunday in the shape of a runaway marriage, the contracting parties being Mr. Henry Willis and Miss Janje Bell, both of this county, Rev. Dudley Jones officiating. It is understood that the cause of the elopement was some objection on the part of the young lady's family.

We trust that since the hopes of the young people have been consummated, and their future destinies linked together.

News comes of a killing at the railroad bridge to the east of Quitman. A negro by the name of Billy Pollard shot and killed another negro by the name of Sade Williams. Williams had been too familiar with Pollard's wife, and Pollard walked up to him and shot him down with a pistol. Pollard was captured by the other negroes.

Mr. Solomon N. Ivey, living eight miles below Cuthbert, was killed by lightning. Mr. Ivey being in the field plowing, a blowing rain having come up, he and his mule sought protection under a tree near by. Whilst thus feeling protected, the tree was struck by lightning, killing Ivey and his mule instantly. McGuire, Shaw Thompson, Willie Bledsoe and others, who are charged with the murder of John Holifield in Hernando county, Florida, in November, 1884. The proceedings being somewhat new to many, and touching a matter about which so much from the part of the prosecution has been published under the head of "The Hernando Horror," attracted quite a crowd of and auxious spectators-citizens who had known John Holifield when he lived in Butts county. The first witness-Mr. Thomas O. Polk, an aged and respected tleman of Jasper county — testified he knew Holifield well and that he has seen and talked with him in 1887. Dr. James Connelly had seen Holifield in 1887. in Macon. The doctor gave a circumstantial James Matt. McMichael testified positively that he saw John Holifield during March of February, 1885. Mr. McMichael talked with Holifield upon this occasion. He also gave the data by which he fixed the time at which he saw Holifield. Mr. J. M. He remembered distinctly that it was after that date, because step-father's death occurred on November 23d, 1884, he assumed control of his step-father's business, and it was while conducting this business that he saw Holifield. Mr. W. A. Bond, saw Holifield in June, 1885. Mrs. Charity S. Thompson, Mrs. O. H. Nutt and Mr. Tobe Thompson saw Holifield in February or March, 1885. Messrs. A Georgian, just returned from Washington city, says: "I visited Mt. Vernon, the home and the tomb of General Washington. Knowing that Georgia and her people have always carried to a successful issue that which they have begun, I earnestly request THE CONSTITUTION, which is read not only in Georgia, but from Maine to Texas, to take up this subject and not allow our state to be behind the northern and western states in the decoration of our room in Mt. Vernon. If the people of the state of Georgia cannot afford to vie with our sister states north, east and west, then let "Georgia room" be stricken from over the door dedicated to Georgia, and let some other state, that will take more pride and spend more money in decorating the room, have it. THURMAN DISTASTEFUL TO GEORGIA. Repudiated in Ohio and Unavailable-A Strong Article. From the Athens Chronicle.

We believe we voice the earnest sentiment of Georgia democrats when we protest against his nomination for vice-president. His unjust, untruthful and brutal attack upon General Henry R. His ungenerous and unmanly refusal when informed of the injustice he had done one of Georgia's distinguished and honored sons, can only merit the unqualified condemnation of every honorable man. SAVANNAH'S POLITICAL FIELD.

A Proposal to Unite Macon's Young Men's Christian Association with the Library.

SAVANNAH, Ga., June 2 .- [Special.] - The political outlook is involved in mist. It is now apparent that no candidate for congress will have two-thirds of the convention. It is certain, indeed, that no candidate will have a majority. Nicholls is making an active campaign, contrary to his early disinclination to any kinetic exertions in his own behalf. He will probably have eight votes in the convention. This will be sufficient to make him something of an arbiter. The Gordon men are very sanguine. Dart's advocacy of Norwood was a surprise to them. The counted on his active interference for their candidate. But Dart is quoted as saying that the difference between himself and Mr. Norwood were merely personal and did not influence his public conduct. Brunswick '3 enthusiastic for Mr. Norwood, who has now become thoroughly ruralized. Speculation is now rife about dark horses. The Savannah delegation is not of course contemplating litimate the state. is not of course contemplating ultimate contingencies, and they will faithfully support Captain Gordon. But outsiders are surmising on the subject. Walter G. Charlton and Fleming G. duBignon are known to have strong friends in the country though neither gentleman is in any way a candidate or a tied-out horse. Public conjecture has of itself, lit more these Public conjecture has of itself lit upon thes two gentlemen as efficient possibilities.

The director of Telfair Art academy was asked his views on the question of admitting, works of

He said: "I see it stated that the duty keeps out good works of art. This is not so. The facts are the other way. Fine paintings, for intance, are constantly brought into America. stance, are constantly brought into America. Free trade in them would work greatly to our disadvantage. It is imagined that it is common for him to feast his voluptuous eye upon perfect female forms divine, round and taper, their then swelling outlines giving the idea of a lush exuberance of animal spirits. Why, it is the hardest thing to get a perfect leg or arm, or shapely bosom, much less an entire figure of just proportions. But the artist carries these proportions in his head. He fills them out to the line of nature in its highest flower and best development. The artist uses the model to give him correct notions of the limb or form when in certain positions. It may be the shadow on an old posture that he wants to catch, or the tension of a muscle, or flesh tints showing through drapery of delicate

This is a common picture in German life-rooms."

Mr. Brandt was asked if it was likely an American artist would be the recipient of the money the academy will pay out for a painting which, it is hoped, will be an object of national interest. He did not think it likely. It was possible he would get Munkaeszy to paint one. He had his thoughts on a painting not yet complete which would be purchaseable for something over $30,000, he thought. There were no great American painters who towered in the clouds. Twenty years would do much. In the clouds. Twenty years would do much. In certain lines, American art had a great past. In portrait painting Inman and Stuart were unsurpassed. In landscapes, Church and others had been eminent and distinctively American.

Look at the composition of the directories to day. We see John Inman, president of the Terminal, also a director of the Central of Georgia, and an influential one, too. He is in the Georgia company, which controls the Central. The Terminal controls the Richmond and Danville and the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia. Mr. John C. Judge Chisholm, one of the Terminal's new directors, is vice-president of the Savannah, Florida and Western, and in fact of the whole system. He represents Mr. Plant in the Terminal. ### MACON MATTERS.

A Proposition to Unite the Young Men's Christian Association and the Library. MACON, Ga., June 2.—[Special.]—The Macon public has been greatly agitated over the proposed consolidation of the Young Men's Christian association and the Macon public

Christian association and the Macon public library. A Constitution reporter has made an investigation of the matter and finds that the facts are as follows:

For a long time the idea has been prevalent, that the consolidation of the Young Men's Christian association and the public library, would enhance the interest of each in the erection of one grand building, suitable for the purposes of each institution.

The interest was extracting to the consolidation of the purposes of each institution.

The interest was so strong in some directions that the material interests of each society were somewhat impeded. Besides, the members of the association were clamorous for a libra of the association were clamorous for a library of their own, and a company from Atlanta had made them a proposition to put in a fine library which would cost their membership very little.

The association, acting in the principle of not interfering with a good work, did no deem it wise to commence a library as long as the city had such a good one; and as the library was an old time-honored institution that deserved the support and patronage of the generous public. The association, which has grown into the first, largest and most progressive work in the first, largest and most progressive work in Georgia, could well afford to wait until the library association was well upon its feet be-fore going into a work which would seem to be in opposition. But to satisfy their friends and fore going into a work which would seem to be in opposition. But to satisfy their friends and the public generally, the committees were appointed from the two boards and at their meeting the Y. M. C. A. made a proposition to consolidate upon the only basis they could and not lose sight of the fundamental principle of Christ upon which their institution is built.

Certain communications on the subject called the association work sectarian, but any one familiar with Young Men's Christian association work will know that such could not be the case in the very nature of the work. However, the matter is settled now, by a rejection by the library of the proposition made them by the association. They (the library) say the union is impracticable, because their charter does not admit of such union and their directors do not think it would be best for both associations.

It is a very wise conclusion of the whole matter, and the two societies can perform their respective duties in the best possible way, and not conflict in interest now or in the future.

The Y. M. C. A. can beign a separate libray, which is very much needed in their work, and can begin work on this building scheme, while the library will begin unifding at once.

The best possible feeling exists between the two institutions, and they are working to the interest of each other, as well as themselves.

The Lucy Cobb Reception.

Athers, Ga., June 2.—[Special.]—The H. S. D. reception, which occurred last night at the Lucy Cobb institute, was the social event of the year, and was a notable success. Besides the young ladies of the institute, visitors from all parts of the state were in attendance. The H. S. The decorations, music, refreshments and general arrangements were on a scale hitherto unattempted in Athens. The memories of the H. S. there is no reason why we should not run the number up to one hundred."

It was expected that two important reports would be submitted—one the report of the committee on ethics and the other the report of the committee on by-laws. Judge Hillyer was the chairman of the former and Colonel Hammond the chairman of the latter. It was thought that these reports would be productive of a good deal of discussion. But neither report was forthcoming. Judge Hillyer asked that his committee be given further time, and Colonel Hammond said he was not ready to make his report. It looked as if the association had nothing before it and would adjourn without accomplishing anything.

But there was sprung a sensation.

After this the meeting became lively.

The sensation was started by Mr. Willie P. Hill, who did it this way: "I have read," said he, "in yesterday's Journal and in this morning's Constitution an account of a trumped up case for damages. It is reported in those newspapers that a colored man named Arp

The action of the association in taking official notice of the publications touching the alleged unprofessional conduct of the firm of Gartrell & Ladson occasioned a good deal of talk among the lawyers.

A prominent attorney said: "The association did a wise thing in charging the committee on ethics with the duty of investigating the action of Gartrell & Ladson. The investigation should be searching. If the charges should be proved true then the association's duty is plain. Should it be found out (as I suspect it will be) that the charges are unfounded, then the firm will be exonorated."

"What are some of the good features peculiar to it?"

"Well, when a man puts in his money he is sure of getting it back in due time, with the accumulated profits. You can withdraw your money at any time by giving thirty days' notice. You can transfer your stock at any time and have an absolute guarantee of 6 per cent interest for the time it has been invested. You can make a temporary loan without forfetting your shares. You can get six per cent discount on dues paid in advance. You can borrow money at 10 per cent premium, or less. These are excellent features, which make the Mechanic Loan and Building association so popular."

"When will your next series start?"

"The next series will begin the 9th of this menth, and it is likely that the profits for the next six months will be as great as those of the preceeding six months. We are highly encouraged by our success, and feel that our future is bright."

THE CONSTITUTION,

HERE COMES THE CONSTITUTION again. as big as a book, and selling for 5 cents. Occasionally some of the boys make a spurt" and pad their papers out to eight or ten pages, but THE CONSTITUTION is barely able to pack its Sunday news and business into twenty pages. In all the rush of matter, THE CONSTITUTION never loses sight of the material development of the south, in which it has always had a leading part. The Chautauqua scheme is conspicuous this morning, but other enterprises also have place. He must be a hard reader to please who does not find in these twenty pages something to interest or instruct, and not the least interesting pages are those devoted to business! A 250 page book would not give any more reading matter; and yet It is only 5 cents that your paper costs you!

Will Name the Next President. The democratic national convention will meet in St. Louis next Tuesday morning, and will then nominate the next president of the United States. His name is GROVER CLEVELAND. There is no doubt about this. There is some doubt about the next vice president. In our opinion his name will be

ALLEN G. THURMAN. That would not sound badly-"Cleveland and Thurman!" Those are names to conjure with!

Ture Pinkstonian statesman ought to get him a mascot. The Situation.

A fact that was not clearly apparent a few days ago has recently come to the surface. The Blaine letter, which was at first received complaicently, or with calm regret, has turned out to be a regular bomb-shell in the republican camp. Everything is in confun. The rank and file are rushing wildly about, and the sutlers are scurrying hither and you. Even the staid old organs that have been through many curious campaigns The Tribune cries out, "After Blaine, who?" and the cry is echoed by the Philadelphia Press and all the smaller fry.

Who, indeed? Will it be Gresham? Th suggestion has been made even by republicans, that Gresham is a trifle too good for his party. The party is emphatically a Blaine affair, fitted up with Blaine machinery. Naturally such an organization will sire to follow a leader with something of Blaine's morals and methods, to say nothing of his magnetism. Gresham is not a man of that stamp.

Will it be John Sherman, the cold and calculating schemer, who never knew there was any fire in his bosom until he met Eliza Pinkston in the fervid clime of Louisiana? It is not likely. Sherman is well thought of by some of the bankers, and he could probably get the support of Wall street, but the "boys," the heelers, the men who make the noise and get up the enthusiasm, do not

Will it be Depew? The trouble with this suave citizen and after-dinner stump speaker is that he is the manager of a great railroad corporation that has frequently offended the public. As yet, he has cut no great caper as a statesman, and it is likely that some more popular candidate will be selected. But what is his name, where does he live and what is his present vocation?

The democratic party, on the other hand, presents a solid and harmonious front to its opponents. It is united all along the line. Since the caucus, in the spirit ef compro mise-which THE CONSTITUTION has advocated all along, has seen fit to conform the Mills bill to the wise provisions of the platform of 1884, there is not, so far as we can see, a single element of discord in the party.

The delegates who are now on their way to St. Louis, have a large part of their work cut out for them. They go to nominate Mr. Cleveland for re-election, and this can be done without any elaborate preliminaries. As to the second place on the ticket, that can also be settled in a few minutes. Whoever Mr. Cleveland decides to accept will be nominated. The president is now supreme so far as the purposes of the party are concerned, and we are confident that he will select as candidate for vice president one of the worthiest men in the party.

There are numerous aspirants, but the most prominent is Judge Thurman, who, as our telegrams today announce, will consent to be a candidate should Mr. Cleveland and the party insist on his running. Though Judge Thurman has been out o politics for some time and has no ambition in that direction now, his name is one to Three Poems.

We print elsewhere today three poems from the pens of Georgian poets that are worthy of attention. It will be observed that, although the poems are written by women, there is very little trace in them of the quality that flits around under the name of femininity. They are healthy in sentiment, vigorous in style and graceful in art.

The first in the collection is Miss Orelia Key Bell's "Po' Jo," which is the finest piece of verse she has yet written. It ossesses a quality that is very rare now-adays-the quality of originality. It glorifies the humblest weed in existence, and contains some touches that would do credit to any American poet that is writing today. What could be more beautiful or more appropriate, for example, than the refrain, which is the cry of the loveliest bird that inhabits our woods and swamps? In this exquisite poem we have the homeliest objects inflamed and glorified by the poet's vision. The little weed set to music is pestifer ous no more. It will be a long time, we fear, before our readers have the pleasure of reading a poem so fresh, so genuiue, so ton, has been made familiar to our readers by her charming essays on the Jersey cow. In her poem, she tells the story of "A Bachelor's Secret." It is an old story, but Mrs. Hunt's art gives it the freshness and piquancy of a new one.

Miss Maude Annulet Andrews has been for some time a contributor to THE CON-STITUTION, both in her prose and poetry. Her sonnet, "A Dedication," is an unusually tender specimen of that difficult form of verse.

Forrog Days takes our inquiry as whom the democrats would nominate should Mr. Cleveland be providentially removed from the race, and turns it into a column of very bright and vigorous writing. But he doesn't answer the question. We repeat it, therefore, in another form. As matters stand, what democrat would be available for the nomination should Mr. Cleveland be providentially taken out of the way?

Our Soldiers and Their Monument. "No soldiers that ever fought on earth such an enduring monument," says Mr. B. F. Abbott, whose Richmond letter is printed in today's Constitution, "as Lee's soldiers who rest under the granite monument at Richmond!"

There is fitness in that! No soldiers ever deserved more enduring monument! The cause for which they fought was lost-the banner under which they fought forever furled! It is fitting that their heroic lives and splendid valor and devotion should be held in grateful remembrance, until the history of their deeds shall have been dimmed into tradition, and men shall stand wondering at the base of that granite pile. as men stand at the foot of the pyramids, knowing only that illustrious things are commemorated there!

In the meantime, shall the grave of Ambrose Powell Hill be left without a fitting monument to tell that a great general and a noble heart lies buried there!

THE St. Louis Republican has changed its name to the Republic, which is a grievous mistake, but in all other directions it is vastly improved under its new management. Its readers are to be congratulated, for there never was a newspaper that needed improving more. It is now in the hands of capable editor.

The Atlanta Medical Association. This association of medical men in Atlanta is now on a solid basis. It was organized about four years ago, with Dr. Elkin as president. It rapidly increased in membership and influence until it numbers now about forty good and efficient physicians of the city, It is not only a social organization but its influence tends to extend the influence of useful ethics in the profession, and aids in extending information in the

The annual banquet at the Markham house showed a large membership, and many young physicians that will soon be at the head of the profession in the south, together with others who have already attained that distinction. The spirit that prevails in the society cannot fail in the most beneficial results if it continues as it has commenced. The present presiding officer is Dr. Hardon, and he is deeply interested in the success of the society.

THE democrats needn't trouble themselves about Wisconsin. It will be a great victory, indeed, if they carry New York, New Jersey and Connecticut by good majorities.

A Southern Private Insane Asylum. We print elsewhere a talk with Dr. T. O. Powell in which he shows the necessity for the establishment of a private insane asylum in the south.

Every consideration of philanthropy and business support the suggestion of Dr. Powell. An insane person is brought back to sanity more certainly among people whose habits, customs, speech and appetites are his own, than among strangers. Many families that would be able to maintain their afflicted in a private asylum near home, are unable to stand the expense of sending them north and of visiting them there as occasion may require.

There are others who would be willing to see an insane relative sent to a private asyum conveniently placed, who would not be willing to send them two or three days jour-

THE Sun has some able poetry on the and of booms. It will be a desolate land indeed in a few weeks. The Bar Association

The Bar association seems to be gradually getting out of a chaotic condition, and the sooner it is out the better for the reputable lawyers at the bar of this county.

When charges are made publicly and the association fails to investigate them simply because they do not know what to do with a party if they find the charges true, will keep the association in a chaotic condition,

The men who have the organization of this association in hand are not likely, we think, to follow a "slack twisted" policy unless they find a majority of the bar lose an interest in the association. Every reputable lawyer should join the association and any lawyer who is guilty of unprofessional conduct, whether he is a member or not, should be tried when charges are made, and if no more is done we should have a verdict giving the facts, so that the public will known who the disreputabe lawyers are in our midst. This will make the association not only popular with the good lawyers, but with the

will be called into requisition. But Florida has of late presented more serious claims of consideration than these. She is rapidly becoming one of the best agricultural states in the union, and is backing her fine and profitable gardens and groves with fields, plantations, pastures and stock farms. The agricultural statistics of the state are simply astounding to those who have believed that it was nothing but a great garden and grove.

Wise investors are rapidly turning to Florida. Almost every large tract of land has been bought, and immigration companies are pouring new settlers into the state. Mr. Flagler, who has spent five million dollars in hotels and improvements at St. Augustine within the past two years, has now purchased the Rockledge property, and will run a railroad from St. Augustine down the Indian river to Rockledge, and will build a magnificent hotel there. This is but an indication of the tendency to rush to Florida next fall with money and muscle from all parts of the union.

The Technological School. The trustees of the technological school will meet in Atlanta on next Thursday, for the purpose of electing a faculty.

There are seven chairs to be filled: Physics, mechanical engineering, chemistry, freehand mechanical drawing, English, mathematics, and superintendent of machinery depart-

President Hopkins will fill the chair of physics; and Professor Higgins, who has been for nineteen years in charge of the machinery department of the Worcester, Mass., school will have charge of the machinery department in Atlanta. It is rumored that only three chairs will be filled by the election on next Thursday, that of chemistry, English and mathematics. There are several candidates for the chair, of chemistry, notably, Messrs. Pratt and Chazell. There are a dozen candidates for the chair of English. Messrs. Laine, D. H. He Was Watching It.

Some surprise has been expressed that Mr. John H. Inman was not present in Richmond when the contest for his seat as president of the Terminal system was in progress. Mr. Inman has vast interests outside of railroads, and these required his presence in New York during the election at Richmond, but he had two private wires run from his office diinto the room at the Ballard house in which the Terminal meeting was being held. His stenographer and operators gave him the proceedings word by word, as rapidly as he uld have noted them had he been present. With his other wire he was enabled to give nute directions as to how the proceedings should be conducted, and as to how every point of objection should be met. Though five hundred miles away, he was practically on the scene, and in as close of the pro-ceedings, and in as close consultation with his friends as if he had been in an adjoining parlor. There are several ways of being at a place, and though Mr. Inman may sometines appear not to be there, it is generally to be remarked that he "gets there."

Important Litigation Ended. The readers of THE CONSTITUTION will remember that some time ago Green & Bateman began a suit in equity for injunction, etc. gainst Mr. J. W. Harle, which was afterwards on motion of Mr. Hoke Smith dismissed as to Green & Bateman, but in the mean time W. V. King had been made a party complaintant by amendment, and Messrs. S. M. Inman and T. H. Austin, who were purchasers of certain property from Mr. Harle, were also made parties defendant. All of the defendants

THE DISCUSSION OVER Senator Stewart's bill to make a majority vote override the presi-dent's veto has developed the fact that four of the states have never given the governor any veto power-Rhode Island, Delaware, North Carolina and Ohio-and the latter state does not even require the executive's signature to a legislative act. This accounts to a great extent for the folly and extravagance of the Ohio legislature. Kentucky has a limited veto power, and executive objection can be overridden by a majority vote. This, however, is better than none at all, for though Governor Buckner, of that state, has bec known as a veto governor, so strong have been his messages, that it is a rare thing that any of

If Mr. Gould really feels this way he is a great goose not to keep quiet, for if he really ever said such a thing it will do more to nominate Gresham than anything else. Mr. Gould's alleged antagonism to Judge Gresham is attributed to the latter's recent decision in Wabash railroad case.

ELIZA LYNN LINTON, in her article on "The Pains of Fear" in the Forum, advances a rather unique view on the subject. She declares that conscience is mostly dependent upon digestion, and that healthy people, though wicked, are happy. She forgets, however, the most important factors in the silence ing of mental broodings or regrets-to-wit: work. Let a person carry around a bad con science in a healthy but idle body, and the conscience will assert its mastery; but if the body and mind are busy there's no time for thought, and both are so tired out when night comes that even bad dreams are impossible.

SEVERAL DAYS AGO in New York, on account of a sudden and tremendons glut in the vege table market, tons upon tons of all kinds of vegetables were condemned to the sea. Great crowds of men and women stood on the wharf when the vegetables were being loaded for dumping, but the officers were not allowed to give any of them away, and hence the people had to leave disappointed.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE. Immigration Needed.

ATLANA, Ga., May 20 .- Hon. Evan P ATLANA, Ga., May 29.—1100. Evan P. Howell; Dear Sir: I read with pleasure your speech delivered at Cartersville on the condition of the country, its resources, etc. I am clearly satisfied that you are on the right line; your views as expressed are correct, but you do not go quite far hough. You leave off one very important subject for the consideration of the south, and particularl the people of Georgia, as you stated. Our climate not surpassed by any other in the world, which is he first consideration in selecting a home. The od water that we have is another very importan in the land. Our minerals are unsurpassed by any other country that I have any knowledge of. All hese we have, but unless we have the labor to de-relop them, the country can never prosper as it should. What we want most and must have is an velop them, the country can never prosper as it should. What we want most and must have is an increased population. Our country is too sparsely settled, and unless we have sufficient labor to cultivate the hands and develop the mines, there is no immediate prospects in the near future.

I have given this subject of immigration a good deal of thought, and am satisfied it is our only hope. As I have said before, we have everything else but sufficient labor. The old world is swarming with labor looking for an outlet. They are finding their way to America every year. I notice in the month of April there was landed in the United States 79, 670 immigrants, being an increase of 6,500 over the same month last year. How many of that number came to Georgia, out of nearly one-baif a million in the last twelve months? I doubt if one thousand, yes, perhaps not five hundred. It may not be three hundred of that number, can active German girl, who can milk a cow and get a breakfiast before you can say "Jack Roberson," and every family in Atlanta could have them if the proper effort was made.

We have everything to induce them to come, but they are not aware of it. This is a fine field for an editor or a statesman. The man or men that in-augurates this system is the one that will do the most good that can possibly accrue from any one. How this is to be accomplished is the question. The co-operation of the southern states might accomplish something. My opinion is the legislar ture of georgia is the proper place to start this tide, appropriate the money and let the work commence. I write this hoping you and the Construction will give it proper thought, and put the ball in motion by some plan or other that is most practicable. Of course I am not prepared to say how this should be done, but hope you are equal to the emergency. Yours truly, GRANT'S LUCK. How the Hero Narrowly Escaped Selling His Book for $10,000.

From the Chicago Times. Leonard Swett told an interesting story the other day illustrative of General Grant's traditional good luck, as well as his lack of what is called good face, as were as his face or white is called shrewdness in commercial dealings. When Grant was engaged in writing his memoirs the Century company, which had been publishing some of his war articles in the Century Magazine, offered him $10,000 for the manuscript of his book. Webster, the publisher, also had his eye on the alert for the forthcoming work, and one day called on the gen-eral to inquire about it. Grant was seated at his desk, about to attach his signature to the Century company's contract, which lay before him. It had apparently never occurred to him to ask more for his literary production. Webster intimated that he would like to make an offer.

"If it would not be impertinent," he said. "I would like to inquire how much the Century com pany agrees to pay you?"
"Ten thousand dollars," General Grant said." "Then I wouldn't sign that contract just vet."

And now they can rest for the summer in happy possession of that magnificent oak which blesses the children of the industrial school with its sheltering arms, fit emblem of the union's purpose, while they plan larger usefulness for the future. A creche, a hospital, already inaugurated in a small way by Mrs. Dixon's bond of the King's Daughters, a technological school for girls—all these are deamed of and talked in the frequent councils. In the meantime the field of the present is ripe for the harvest, and the laborers of the Woman's Industrial union humbly hope that they will not be found wanting in faith to plan, in wisdom to execute, or in devotion to sustain their beneficent work.

Pance De Leon Avenue.

One of the prettiest streets in Atlanta is Ponce De Leon avenue. It is the widest street in Atlanta, being ninety feet broad, from in Atlanta, being ninety feet broad, from Peachtree street to the springs. In a few years this street will be lined with beautiful houses and magnificent lawns. The most of the street is in Fulton county and subject only to state and county tax, which is very light—no corporation tax at all. It is also the only street in Atlanta that has two lines of street cars running on it. No street in this county presents more beautiful building sites. Its entire length is just a succession of magnificent building lots. In a few years Mr. Joe Kingsbery, Mr. W. A. Moore and others will have beautiful country homes and Ponce De Leon avenue will lead direct to them. We predict that this avenue will become most lamous for its width, beauty and elegance.

"It is a scientific fact that the Royal Baking Powder is absolutely pure.

The Royal Baking Powder received the highest award over all competitors at the Vienna World's Exposition, 1873; at the Centennial, Philadelphia, 1875; at the American Institute, New York, and at State Fairs throughout the country.

No other article of human food has ever received such high, emphatic, and universal endorsement from eminent chemists, physicians, scientists, and Boards of Health all over the world.

A pound can of each powder was taken, the total leavening power or volume in each can calculated, the result being as indicated. This practical test for worth by Prof. Schedler only proves what every observant consumer of the Royal Baking Powder knows by practical experience, that, while it costs a few cents per pound more than ordinary kinds, it is far more economical, and, besides, affords the advantage of better work. A single trial of the Royal Baking Powder will convince any

Matters of Interest About People and Things

SOME POINTS ABOUT DRESS.

The Entertainments of the Past Week and to Come-Exercises at the Schools.

The Classical Coiffure. Twas all very well for young Psyche to wear in the simplest of fashions her gold-tinted hair, And a gown with no sign of a bodice; For she was so perfect in loveliness, all the mortals who saw her were ready to fall At her feet, and proclaim her goddess.

But if women should follow her fashion today, and their tresses arranged in a Psyche-like way. Though most of them are charming create Not one in a hundred, nay thousand, 'tis said, Would it suit for the leak of a classical head, And truly Olympian features.

And as for the style that some fair ones employ of cutting and elipping their locks a la boy, I think it exceedingly stupid; For never was poet that did not declare That the pets that are woven of beautiful hair Are the surget to eatch and hold Cupid.

Never was there a time when the arrange ment of the hair was more varied. It is puffed and banged, plaited or coiled low or high, and a woman who can't choose a becoming style is indeed home-ly. The Psyche knot is about the most trying style, and it seems to be favored by skinny women, who draw their hair as tight as wax from their faces, e the look of well pre -a Psyche knot with curling rings protrud there through the soft curls, and made ubly dangerous by a silver arrow poked in side

The Woman of the Future.

Professor Hutchinson, in the American Magazine, for June, speaks hopefully of the future physical development of women, and looks forward to the day when high shoes, bustles and corsets will be abandoned. People have been looking forward non sense in femal attire since garments invented, and will be disappointed left hopes 'till the end of oter. There was a time, some years before the war, when heelless cloth and satin shoes gave ugliness and comfort to a woman's foot, yet her body, at that period, was laced from the waist up so tightly as to give a painfully, flat, attenuated ap-pearance. In the time of Napoleon women wore orsetless chemise—like gowns, but they "pea-ocked" around on heels four inches high. A woman wouldn't feel stylish or comfortable unless she gore something uncomfortable about her. It's a pity, but it will always be so. As for the corset, it does more good than harm. The majority of nen are too thin or too stout and either extremes are much the worse of for looks when the corset is abandoned. The demure Dankard maidens go corsetless and are sald to be pretty and have lovely figures; but they only allow themselves to be seen m a distance that may lend enchantment to un

From numerous other remarks, too coarse to mention, one is led to suspect him of frequenting beer gardens and all sorts of uncanny places. He tainly could not have seen all these coarse sights and people in a pretty ball room, with its light and garlands lending enchantment to the faces of debu-tantes who are innocently happy over their first ball. A coarse woman is coarse anyhow; she may be coarser when she's waltzing, but I don't believe it. For an innocent girl, waltzing is a rythmical, innocent pleasure, and the onlooker who judges her the heatest act and the onloader who judges her se must accredit his judgment to his own This hopelessly-gone-to-the-bad Mr. S er-clares that the majority of old maids come from the ranks of waltzing girls. He hasn't studied this subject. I have observed that the families con taining a large assortment of old maids are those in which a dancing step has never been taken, or a dancing step has never been taken, or the girls were homely and waltzed on the

Women Collectively,

The New York Sun gives an amusing account of a business meeting of the King's Daughters, and says truthfully that women collectively have no idea of business. The assertion could be carried still farther. Women collectively have no idea of anything. Society gatherings composed entirely of women are failures, and it is to be hoped that high teas will be less frequently given during the coming season than heretofore. Knowing that women have some underground reason for their very worst actions, I asked a society woman why on earth these miserable gossip parties were kept up. "I will explain it. my dear," she roplied. "You know I am noted for my charming way of enter-taining and people say they always have a delightful time at my house. I really believe they do except at high teas. I don't like to give them, but there are good reasons for them. You see, there are so many women who visit and entertain one. Now, suppose a stupid woman has me at her house; must I give a dinner and have her sitting like a heavy randding at my table. No I taylik she alone. lding at my table? A Beautiful Boudoir. The bridel chamber of an English duchess surpasses anything I have recently heard of. The narcissus was her favorite flower and it predominates in the decorations. The ceiling and walls ar nates in the decorations. The ceilling and walls are of pale praysib-green and gold. The fringe and dado is of dull gold canvass silk, hand embroidered in white narcissus. The chandellers have for globes opaline glass in the satue flower design. The velvet carpet is gray-green, sprinkled with golden flowers. The furniture of heavy English oak is carved in cepids, and the window draperies, bed spread and pillow cases are of Spanish lace in a conventional design of narcissus.

The Finest Dinner Table.

The following details of a dinner which was given the other day by a New York lady, says the London Court Journal, may be read with interest by people who want to know the latest thing in the the lake, and a colored glass ball, lighted by elec the tage, and a colored gass bat, ighted water, tricity, spurted up and down a jet of crystal water. There was no cloth on the table, and each of the twently courses served at the dinner was placed before the guests on a natural palm leaf. The wall and room decorations—some of which came from Florida. and South America—generally were of smilax, ferss, ivy and palm, mandarin, banana, orange and other trees. Hanging among them were hundreds of very small colored electric lights.

of very small colored electric lights.
The decorations of each plate cost thirty dollars, the favors sixty, and the menus were painted to order atten dollars apiece. The truffles came from France, and the strawberries cost seven dollars and five cents per bunch of five terries. Roman punch was served in oranges hanging on the natural trees, the pulp of the fruit having been detily removed, so that the guests picked the oranges from the branches.

Women and Riding Habits. The most worn-out looking girl living is one ust returned from a horse-back ride. It isn't the kind of worn-out look one has from healthy, free exercise; it is like the fretful expression on a petulant child's face. A New York girl was complaining about her Redfern habit. "Of course, it fits beautifully and all that, but it's light as wax." I can scarcely beathe, and my trousers are so tight I can barely bend my knee, then the beaver is so hot and heavy that it makes my head ache."
"Why don't you wear a jersey waist and a soft jockey cap?" I questioned.

"A jersey waist! Goodness! I'd rather die from sufficient than do such a tacky thing. I do sometimes wear a soft cap when I ride in the mornings."

This conversation brings mo to the subject of jersey jackets. The fact that ithey are positively out of fashion is one to be regretted by any woman caring for comfort. They are the most delightful garments ever invented, and the only ones to be thought of for work, because they alone allow a free move-ment to the arms and shoulders.

She now has a studio in the sixth story of a house in the Rue dez Saints-Peres, Paris, which was once occupied by Paul Delaroche. Miss Strong does most of her painting out of doors in the heautiful country round about Paris.

Society Events of Interest at Home-Points

About People. Though the social events of the past week have not been numerous, those that were given were of more than ordinary brilliancy. The weather has been unpropitious for outdoor entertainnents, quite a number of them having been arrang ed, but abandoned or post-oned until a more favor-able time. The lawn parties that took place were compelled to carry out the most of the programme in the parlors of the residences instead of the grounds, as had been proposed by the managers.

The fioral decorations at the luncheon given in honor of Miss Virgie Brock by Mrs. Ollie Fuller during the week were among the most eleborate and beautiful ever seen here. The house throughout was dacked with daisies, but the beauty of the diningroom was such as to make one desire to stay there always. In the center of the table was a very large bank of daisies; pond lilies were so arranged that the ends of the stems only were in the water under the datales, the blooms appearing to blossom here and there on the table. Little boxes contain-ing crystallized roses and violets were the favors.

On Friday night a very pleasant entertainment was given at the Talmadge house, for the ben-cift of the Mission Sunday-school of the first Baptist church. Atlanta is noted for the brilliancy of her entertainments, but there has been none more elegs nt than the tea given last night by Mrs. Carroll Payne, complimentary to her guest, Miss Donnelly, of New York. One would think that nothing could be more handsome than the "Hill" home, but last more handsome than the "Hill" home, but last night with its decoration of potted plants, palms, ferns and masses of cut flower, the beholder could easily imagine himselt in fairy land or within Flora's roalm. The beautiful Marshal Neil was the favorite flower in decoration and the effect of the many brilliant lights upon these was most charming. The guests were all in full evening dress. Miss Donelly were a "Worth" dress of right motre with robusts. wore a "Worth" dress of pink moire, with point lace over dress, while the toilets of the other ladies

Mr. Sternberg's concert and opera on Friday evening showed the master hand that trained and guided it. To train young girls to such a high de gree of perfection reflects the greatest credit upon Mr. Sternberg.

Among the happy events of the season was the matriage, on last Thursday evening, at the residence of Captain A. J. The affair was made quiet as possible, on account of the illness of the bride's mother—the immediate relatives only the bride's mother—the immediate relatives only were 'nvited, but numerous presents were sent in by friends. Alsberg, that boy of sober thought and visage. Indeed, he would fairly glean with streaks of midnight sunshine when leading the nicest dancer I have ever seen, Miss Emma Wessolowsky. Bobby Forrester, the Joy of his fasher's heart, he was subdued, poor fellow, how else could he be; Miss Eva Carter tripped with him through the mazes of the giddy dance. Then Sid Yason, the boy who always laughs, was laughing when I last saw him. Miss Ellie Oliver was shedding sunshine on his sunny heart. And there was our own Tom Nelson. Easton.

This beautiful little town is situated only six miles from Atlanta, on the Richmond and Danville railroad. To some it is quite familiar, while others never heard of it; but we wish to be sociable and better known, and through the columns of The Constitution we wish to make our debut, hoping to meet with a hearty welcome.

Easton is quite a sociable little place; always some kind of enjoyment on hand. Several visiting young ladies are expected soon, and society promises to be quite lively.

Griffin.

Griffin.

Griffin society has been quite lively this week, and the summer gayeties have commenced, and from now until September society will be in a whirl.

Mouday and Tuesday evenings the entertainments at the female college drew large crowds, and the young ladies of the college entertained their friends in a delightful manner.

Welnesday Mrs. E. W. Hammond gave one of her enjoyable evenings to her friends. About a dozen couples were present, and the occasion was one long to be remembered by all who were present. Elegant and tempting refreshments were served.

The young ladies gave a leapyear german Wednesday evening, at the Greys' armory, to their gentlemen friends. This was an entertainment such as only the Griffin girls can get up. Everything was done to make the gentlemen enjoy themselves. Carriages called at the usual hour, and all precautions were taken that the acting ladies for the evening should not be exposed. Refreshments were served during the evening in a most charming manner.

The home of Mr. George I. Jones, on Poplar street, was in a blaze of brilliancy Wednesday evening. The occasion was a gathering of the young people who did not dance, and it was a very pleasant occasion. Games and conversation and delightful refreshments made the evening both short and very pleasant.

The lawn party given at the residence of Judge and Mrs. C. C. Kibbee, last Friday night, under the auspices of the laddles of St. Lukes Guild, was a magnificent success.

It is hardly in our province to conceive of a more elegant and unique affair than this proved. Judge Kibbee has spared no labor or expense in making his home a most attractive one. The house itself is elegance and convenience perfected, while the grounds are beautifully laid out and terraces, with flowers and shrubs abounding, and in the rear fruit tree and harbors. The grounds were made attractive with Chinese lanterns. The crowd was large, it seemed as though every available space in house and grounds were occupied. Good humor and mirth prevalled. In the parlors fancy articles were sold, while on the grounds, ice cream, strawberries and cake were served. It was no difficult matter to perceive that the "good times had" by their guests were directly traceable the efforts of the kind host and hostess.

It is seldom that an opportunity is given us to chronicle a more pleasing entertainment than the one given by Misses Mamie and Katie Dewett to a select few of their friends at the Scarbon house last Wednesday evening. These charming young hostesses have a special talent in knowing just how to make their guests feel at home. So pleasantly did the time pass away while listening to some fine pleces of music and recitations, with sell and forfeit games, and sparkling conversations, the city clock's giving the hour of one was quite a surprise. At the proper time the fair hostesses invited their guests into the dining room where a tempting lay out was spread. The Misses DeWitt's are very popular, counting their irlends by the scores, and with this affair sustaining the merited reputation they already held as the fairest and most successful of hostesses. Following were there: Miss Anna Glover with Joe Buck Polhili; Miss Clee Glover with S. C. Smith. Bags: E. H. Cutts, B. D. Adams.

A CONCERT ON WHITEHALL,

Collection of the Finest Instruments All Going at the Same Time-Grand Music. Yesterday afternoon as a Constitution represearchive was passing up Whitehall street he was attracted by the sweetest music. As if by inspiration he was led to the house of Freyer & Bradley, where a business concert was going on. It is well-known that the proprietors and employes of this old trust the proprietors and employes of this old trust that the proprietors and each one was worthy house are all musicians, and each one was worthy house are all musicians, and each one was at a piano, organ or some other musical instrument, and, well—it cannot be described—but it was the sweetest music ever heard. Talk about your Wagner festivals, Polymnia concerts, but both combined could not equal the music of this concert. "Why?" do you ask?

Simply because there were master players on the finest instruments in the world. One was playing on a Karnish & Bach grand piano, the great southern favorite, another on Gobler Bros', another on Vose & Son's, another on Sterling, while Wilcox & White and Smith American organs were operated by others. All these instruments going at once, making the most delightful melody, is enough to attract the attention of any one. The instruments referred to are the very best and are sold referred to are the very best

The change made in their large storeroom is one of the most pleasing in appearance, and the several departments are conveniently arranged. There is no house in the south that has a better name and furnishes better instruments, and more satisfactory to deal with, then Messrs. Freyer & Bradley.

The American Musician has this to say about them:

The American Musician has this to say account them:

"The firm of F. L. Freyer & Co., dealers in pianos, organs, and musical merchandise, at 27 Whitehall street, has been dissolved, Mr. E. Schneider retiring. A new copartnership has been formed under the firm name of Freyer & Bradley, at the same place. This change introduces into the firm Mr. Senuel Bradley, who for several years has had charge of the sale department of the Estey establishment here, and they owe their popularity in a great measure to his excellent management of that department.

"Mr. Freyer is one of the pioneer plano dealers of the south, and is noted and respected for the generosity and squareness that characterizes all of his business transactions, while at the same time he is one of the shrewdest business men in the south, and is rich. The son is a rising young man of fine ability. Mr. Bradley is a leading musician of the city, and a gentleman of unswerving integrity in business matterns. I see no reason why the new firm will not take a leading position in the trade of Atlanta."

"How can we live at Chautauqua?" This question has been asked a thousand times

Just as you please! The Marsh company has thre stels built at a cost of $300,000. The Sweetwater Park hotel is admitted to be the most sumptuou summer hotel in the south. It is superbly built, uperbly furnished and superbly run. Every aptment is luxurious, and a more exquisite sumer home can be found nowhere. Finer suites of rooms than the famous Ponce de Leon boasts can be had in the Sweetwater at moderate cost. The grounds are made beautiful with flowers, fountains, groves and lawns. The Chautauqua company is building about 100 rooms, which will be furnished plainly, but comfortably, and rented at from 25 cents to 75 cents per day. At $1 a day or less, room or cottage renters can live well at the restaurant.

Several cottages will be built for rent, but not more than a dozen perhaps in time for this season, About 400 building lots will be offered for sale of June 14th. Purchasers can build cottages in a very few days and can occupy them during July and At Many have already begun. Cottagers can board at the restaurant or can carry up their own servants and keep house. Country produce can be had in abundance and cheap.

"Tenting" will be a favorite way of living a Piedmont Chantauqua, as at all other chantauquas Such tents as our people have never seen will b put up. At the New York Chantauqua there are whole streets of tents, full all the time with the best of people, who are taken with the free and easy life. The camp quarters of Chantauqua, will be very popular, and families who rent tents can live cheaper at Chautauqua than at home.

The best way, of course, for those who can, is to buy a lot and put up a two-room or three-room cotage and hold it as a summer home. But there are a dozen places all open to choice. Of one thing be certain: "Go to Piedmont Chatauqua-and no mater how little you want to spend, you can live co fortably and respectably on it, and enjoy all the

"What is your plan for organizing one for the south?"

"I have had a preliminary conference with Dr. Murphy, of North Carolina, and Dr. Griffin, of South Carolina, and Dr. Peter Brice, of Tuskalosa, Alabama, at the late meeting, and they agreed with me that it was an absolute necessity. In fact, if nobody else will establish one, we intend to do it ourselves. Each of them sees daily the necessity of a private asylum located in a southern city, where the patient would be treated in accordance with his original habits, and where he would be convenient to his relatives and friends. Such an institution would stop a drain of thousands of dollars annually from our section. I am going to call a conference of the above named gentlemen in Atlanta during the summer, and if you people will show proper interest in the matter, it is entirely likely that the asylum will be located here. I do not know of a better point for it. Located upon one of the hills near Atlanta, with ample grounds, it would be a philanthropy and a success from the start."

The fact that whatever Atlanta undertakes she does with a will has rarely been more promptly demonstrated than it was yesterday in the subscriptions to the capital stock of the new refrigerating company. It is but a few weeks since Mr. H. I. Kimball came here from New York, called a meeting of a few citizens and presented to them the facts in regard to a new refrigerating process, which he believed had great merit, and it so impressed the meeting. A committee of citizens was appointed. The system was by them strongly appointed. The system was by them strongly approved. A company with a capital of $100,000 was organized to introduce the system throughout the south. Twenty-five thousand dollars of this stock was offered to Atlanta and promptly taken. The balance of the stock was taken by other cities the company was organized with headquarters in Atlanta, and within this brief time it has fitted up a beautiful suit of offices at 24 East Alabama street, erected a complete plant, combining the "distilling and refrigerating apparatus," and a week ago we published the account of an exhibition and test of domestic refrigerators, which was witnessed by a large

OFFICE OF THE REFRIGERATING CONSTRUCTION CO.—Atlanta, June 2, 1888.—To answer a large number of correspondents and inquiries, please publish the enclosed copy of a letter addressed to a gentleman in Dalton by one capacal manager. of a letter addressed to a general in David by our general manager.

The pamphlets and subscription lists referred to therein can be had on application to the office. Yours truly,

C. A. Collier, President.

Office. Yours truly.

C. A. Collier, President.

Atlanta, Ga., May 31, 1888.

Dr. W. H. Murdock, Daiton, Ga.:

Dear Sir.: Your favor of the 25th duly received. Your inquiries cover a very broad field, and yet I am in receipt of a large line of inquiries of the same general character, yours perhaps is the most comprehensive, but in reply I will not only include the points made by you, but those which are made by others, and which may be of service to you.

1. Our business is simply to supply the refrigerating agent and the necessary appliances for its use. We do not supply the refrigerators or boxes of any kind, and have none for sale, consequently can quote no prices for such. The dealers in this class of goods will soon be ready to supply this demand, the same as they do now for those who use ice.

2. The system can be applied to any ordinary refrigerator, by taking out the ice bunker, thus giving more space for for use, or applied to a much less expensively insulated box, and costs no more than ice.

3. In the small pamphlet which I hand you herewith, you will find the system fully explained and many of your questions answered. Note Professor Doremus' statement on page 6. Note to what the system is applicable on pages 12 and 13.

4. The refrigerating properties of ice are now well understood, consequently we make this the basis of comparisons as to cost, amount required, etc., as fully explained in our pamphlet. For instance, if a person uses fifty now well understood, consequently we make this the basis of comparisons as to cost, amount required, etc., as fully explained in our pamphlet. For instance, if a person uses fifty pounds of ice per day, he would use in sixty days 3000 pounds, hence one fountain of our annydrous ammonia, containing 100 pounds, would be its equivalent, and would last two months, to do the same amount of refrigeration as the ice. Greater or lesser quantities in the same proportion.

5. In regard to organizing a company for the erection of a plant in Dalton, permit me to say that the demands from large cities where the profits to us will be much greater, will necessarily compel us to serve such first. And for a few years at least, cities of less than from ten to fitteen thousand inhabitants must be supplied from the larger cities where the stills are erected. The time is not far distant, however, when every little village and settlement of a few hundred inhabitants even, will have their cold storage and refrigerating rooms. Nothing could pay Dalton better than to have centrally located a few rooms, well insulated and fitted with our refrigerating apparatus, where milk, butter, eggs, fruit, vegetables, meat, poultry, fish, game, etc., could be stored indefinitely. Cities so provided will certainly control trade of the surrounding country, and command purchasers from a distance.

By means of our system, every village can

By means of our system, every village can be (supplied. The best possible evidence of this fact may be seen at our office, where, with a fountain of annydrous ammonia shipped from New York, we are showing the most wonderful and satisfactory results of refrigera-with a fountain of annydrous ammonia shipped from New York, we are showing the most wonderful and satisfactory results of refrigeration.

The plant now being erected in Atlanta will soon be completed; it has a capacity sufficient to furnish twenty or thirty small cities, in addition to supplying the present demands of Atlanta, and as a large number of the surrounding cities have already applied, each wanting to be supplied first, the incorporators of the Atlanta Automatic Befrigerating company have determined to allow to them the opportunity of enjoying the same benefits of this system as will be enjoyed by Atlanta, and to that end, have offered to the public 55 per cent of the entire capital stock of this company. The towns and cities subscribing for the largest amount of said stock will first be entitled to consideration in supplying the town with the system. It seems to me that the plan is not only wise but equitable, and I recommend that you organize a small syndicate of your best people in Dalton, who shall first subscribe for from 200 to 500 shares of the capital stock of the Atlanta company. Then put up sufficient capital to insulate, say from 2000 to 500 cubic feet of rooms and supply them with the pipe and other appliances necessary for perfect refrigerating results. Such syndicate should have sufficient capital to be able to purchase such goods whenever offered cheap, and carry till they are high. The Atlanta company will give to such syndicate could in addition to cold storage furnish refrigeration for hotels, restaurants and domistic use, the same as the Atlanta company will furnish to the citizens of Atlanta. Just how this may be done is fully explained in the pamphlet which I send you. The localities outside of Atlanta will be supplied in the order in which they stand upon the list as subscribers to the Atlanta company. For instance, if Dalton subscribes more than Rome, Carterville, Marietta, Griffin or Madison, she will first secure the business.

That such business will be immensely profitable,

THE CAPTAIN'S GHOST

Strange Rappings Heard at Oakland Cemetery.

IN THE EARLY MORNING HOURS.

Startle Those on the Cemetery

Watch-Is it the Captain? "Two sharp, distinct raps-just such as the captain makes when he raps on that grindstone with his stick to see if the watchman is awake.

It was a clear moonlight night, and my first night at Oakland cemetery. I rapped for an answer and then walked towards the grindstone. There was nobody there."

The speaker pointed to a rickety, oldfashioned grindstone standing just in front of the "office" at Cakland. It looked commonplace enough-just like hundreds that you have seen, and suggestive of anything on earth but one o'clock ghost or spirit rappings.

"On that very grind stone, as plain as I ever heard anything in my life, and not a soul in sight. I wasn't asleep. I wasn't dreaming. To be certain about it I rapped sgain, and again. There was no answer. Not a brauch stirred, not a leaf moved. I hadn't heard any "Hooked surprise!, I know, for Captain B—had been dead nearly three years.

"Yes, that's Captain B—, said the old man. That used to be on his side you know, and every night, as regular as night came, the old captain would rap there on the grindstone for the Oakland guard. He is buried right out there, you know, and every night, just about the time he used to call, the brave old captain raps for his guard." footsteps, and I just had to conclude finally that I had been altogether mistaken. "I didn't say anything about it, of course, and had nearly forgotten it when I relieved the watch next night—one dark, cloudy, rainy Sunday night at 12 o'clock. I heard the city clock strike once for half past twelve, and then once for one o'clock. I felt restless and wide awake somehow or other, and just to while away the time, I began oiling my pistol. "I was busy with that when I suddenly heard two quick, sharp raps on the old grind-stone. I put down the pistol and rapped twice.

stone. I put down the pistol and rapped twice, on the floor with my club. Then I stepped to the door. I looked out into the mist and the dark. I could see the outlines of the old grindstone plainly, but there was nobody there—only the graves and the tombstones. The rain was failing in a quiet, misty sort of a way, and the wind barely moved the dead leaves and the flowers—just the faintest, dreariest moaning—and that was all. No footsteps—no voice. I rapped again. No answer. Then I stepped to the grindstone and rapped twice. It was as still as a grave. Then I called, as loud as I could:

"'Oh, captain!'
"I held my breath and waited for an answer, but mone came. I called again, and it was as still as before. I walked around the office, then through the yard—carefully, slowly—and there was no living thing in Oakland.

"Next day I asked my captain if he had apped for me at the cemetery the night before. " 'Did you come out the night before?'

"Id don't say a word about what I had heard. Next night—another clear night—I began listening about one o'clock, and not more than five minutes after the clock struck I heard it plain and quick—two raps. I listened for the footsteps—and I could hear my heart beat as I listened, but there were no footsteps. Then I looked, and looked carefully too, but there was nothing in sight.

footsteps. Then I looked, and looked carefully, too, but there was nothing in sight.

"After that I would sit in the door where I could see the grindstene, and the raps were sharp, plain and distinct as ever, and right at the grindstone. Occasionally my captain would come-out and rap. I could hear him coming usually, and I would rap, rap, and we would talk for a little while in a real, earthly sort of a way that was a genuine luxury. I nover mentioned the rappings. It was that way all the while I was out here—nearly every night you could hear it, and Partnership Notice

AN OUTRAGE UPON THE PUBLIC.

It Should be Stopped at Once-The Police Should Look After the Matter.

There are manythings that the reading public can bear, but this thing of newspapers allowing men who make a business of advertising their goods through reading articles is simply unbearable and through reading articles is simply unbearable and should be stopped. You pick up atmost any paper in the land and the first thing your eyes fall upon is some article of real genius, and by the time you become fully interested you are dumbfounded to find that you are caught by some shrewd advertiser, who is only leading you to read his advertisement, when you immediately stop and exclaim, oh, pshawl and unconsciously look around to see if any one saw you read it. Not wishing any one to think your judgment is so much at fanit as to be caught in such a trap, you immediately get very nervous. Now the question arises as to how to correct his. Shall the public rise up in arms against the papers? No, this will not do, and yet it seems the only alternative, except to band together and determine to stop taking rapers entirely, and yet we cannot afford to give up the little information the papers give us along in between the advertising dodges. It seems to mee the better plan would be to take Dr. Woolley's livigorine—the great nerve tonie—which will tone up the system, brighten the intellect, cheer the depressed, and diseastion and relieve you of all mental and physical exhaustion, thereby enabling you to bear these windy medical ads. Ask your druggist about it.

The Thurman Boom Continues to Grow

Gossip of the Hotels and Results of Conferences,

Sr. Louis, June 3 .- [Special.] - The demo acy is astir tonight. Delegations from every rter are arriving constantly, and the city is ally in the hands of its visitors. Though iving at a late hour tonight, I find the ession of the earnest and active work of day in the general enthusiasm it has ted. The day has been given to the dision of the vice-presidential question, and Thurman has swept the field. There is now carcely the shadow of a doubt as to his nomiion, and if there ever had been, Congressman Scott's announcement in his favor would have settled it. Since the oracle of the adinistration has spoken, the matter is regarded THE GRAY MEN and are working like beavers. The Thurman boom seems to be taking care of itself, and is fattening on enthusiasm. Nobody seems to be actually at work in its laterest, but everybody seems interested in it, and me after another the delegations are falling in It is understood that Congressman Seott's position represents the views of Mr. Cleveland, who, it is said, is the original Thurman man. Mr. Thurman's age does not cem to have the slightest effect in retarding the progress of his boom, and the impression prevails that the convention will nominate im if it was certain that he would die within ayear. The enthusiasm created cannot be becked by small things like feeble health and

Other prominent ers are with him, among whom are Senator Gorman, of Maryland, ex-Mayor Cooper, of New York, and Senator Henry T. Davis, of pretty well assured West Virginia, all of whom openly announce that they are ready to fight any effort to commit the party to a free trader or the Mills bill sight of as vice-pre platform. Of course any such a contest would as to Postmaster-Ge be fruitless, for if there is any one thing surer own Michigan deleg nanother it is that the convention is going to stand by the president in his tariff message. A direct indersement of the Mills bill will most probably be emitted, but the president's mes-age will be indersed in its entirety. It is said Messrs. Cooper and Barnum will put the party on notice that if it steps beyond the bounds of the tariff plank of 1884 that it will very seriously endanger the states of New York, New Jersey and Connecticut to the democrats. There has probably never been a national convention, however, in which verything was so much one way, and consequently which was moved by the same enthuinsm as will be this one. Everything tends to one direction, and now that the vice-presidential nomination has been virtually decided the track is clear for quick work and an early adneut, though it is said that the convention will be in session three days. This, howver, is complimentary and contributory to St.
